SEEK BAIL FOR MRS. RAYMOND

Change of Venue May Be Asked for the Trial of Woman Arrested on a Charge of Killing Mattie Hackett—Easter in Cell

AUGUSTA, Me., April 8.—Efforts were begun here today to secure the admission to bail of Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond, indicted by the Grand Jury and arrested on a charge of the murder, seven years ago, of Mattie Hackett.

There is also a plan on foot, on the part of friends of Mrs. Raymond, to apply for a change of venue to some other county. Two reasons are given for this by Frank A. Berry of Lewiston, attorney for Mrs. Raymond.

First—The case has been a matter of general discussion for so long in Kennebec County that it would be impossible to get a fair and impartial jury.

Second—In Kennebec County, it will be necessary to wait six months before the woman can be brought to trial. It is desired to obviate this long imprisonment or suspense by bringing the woman to trial in some other county before that time.

Evelyn, the little daughter of Mrs. Raymond, was so heart-broken at being separated from her mother that it was planned today to have her stay with Sheriff Richardson at the jail, so that the mother and child might be together as much as possible.

Baby Visits Mother.

When Burton Raymond, the prisoner's husband, and their little daughter, visited Mrs. Raymond in her cell, the scenes were as affecting one. When Mrs. Raymond was arrested, four-year-old Evelyn cried and sobbed and clung close to her mother. It required all her father's persuasion, and even physical force to take her away.

And when the accused woman and her daughter met, in the cell, the lady rushed into the arms that had always had to warm a welcome for her, and for five minutes, tears ran down the mother's cheeks, while she caressed and soothed the distressed child.

Sheriff Richardson was touched at the sight. Mrs. Raymond pleaded with him to take her daughter into his own house, and it is believed today that such an arrangement will be made.

The application for admission to bail for Mrs. Raymond is an unusual one. The Maine law permits bail in murder cases, but it is seldom granted, and only three times in the history of the State have prisoners under this charge been allowed their freedom while awaiting trial.

The Raymond-Hackett case has aroused so much feeling, however, and the suspicion under which Mrs. Raymond has rested for seven years has won her so many partisans that many business men of Augusta volunteered today to advance her bail.

600 Roxbury Women Carpet Workers Go on Strike

Policemen on Guard at Every Entrance to Mills

Operatives Demand 10 Per Cent. Increase in Wages and Reinstatement of Three Girls.

A strike was declared by the 600 women operatives at the Roxbury Carpet Company shortly after the mills opened today. The women left their machines and looms. A call for police protection was sent in by the millowners and policemen were put on guard at every entrance to the mills.

The workers demand an increase in wages of 10 per cent.

When the first command to strike and lay out of the mills was issued by Mrs. Mary Conboy, who was formerly by Mrs. for the Roxbury Textile Workers' Union, between one hundred and one hundred and fifty passed out of the mills and congregated on the streets in the neighborhood. One by one the strikers left their work.

Shortly after 7 o'clock the weavers went to their machines and in a few minutes left in a body and filed out of the building. This threatened strike has been known to the owners of the mills for the past ten days.

The demands presented to President Frank E. Simpson of the Roxbury Carpet Mills Company two weeks ago, were as follows:

That the wages of all employes be increased 10 percent.

The reinstatement of three girls, who were employes of these mills and who were discharged from service without just reason.

A. F. of L. Backs Strike.

In reply to these demands, it is alleged by the union officials, that President Simpson had nothing to say, absolutely refused to even consider the demands of the union.

Today the demands were again put up to Superintendent Hamilton, of the mills at 7 o'clock, but he, like the president, would not say anything favorable. His only remark when the demands were reiterated was "We have not changed our minds."

The action of Mrs. Conboy and the Roxbury Textile Workers' Union is strongly backed by the A. F. of L., which organization has been considering the advisability of this movement for some time. "There will be no violence, whatsoever, and the police need not come near the place," is the way those conducting the strike commented when they saw the policemen lined up at the entrances to the mill this morning.

Mrs. Evans Picket.

Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans today volunteered her services as a strike picket. Mrs. Evans' services were accepted and she took up a post on the sidewalk in front of the factory. She said:

"I am delighted at the chance to show my sympathy with the strikers' cause in this fashion. From what I know of the situation I am convinced that their demands are just, but I am making a personal investigation of the wages paid to them in the factory. In the meantime, I shall be on hand with the strikers to-morrow morning at 6:30 o'clock, to do my work as a picket."

At a meeting in Roosevelt Hall, Mrs. Conboy addressed the strikers. Mrs. Conboy as a leader in women's wage cases visited the Lawrence and Lowell strike and was requested by President John Golden of the United Textile Workers to take charge of this strike. She said:

"I want to warn you in the very beginning of this strike that the way to win is to keep within the laws. Don't congregate on the streets. Don't start disorder.

"Keep your picket lines on the move all the time, and keep them out from 6:30 in the morning till the mills close.

"In every tumult in New England where there is a textile mill, outside of Roxbury, there have been wage increases of from five to fifteen per cent. You are the only textile workers who have not been given a substantial advance in wages.

TWO PRINCIPALS IN ROXBURY CARPET STRIKE, AND SYMPATHIZERS.

Above, left to right, are Miss Margaret Molloy and Miss Mary Kilduff, whose reinstatement is demanded by Roxbury carpet strikers. Below is a group of workers quitting factory today.

Crows Gave Alarm of Mather Murder

Farmer Heard Birds Caw-ing About Body, But Did Not Investigate Cause.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 8.—Early next day crows sounded an alarm for the murder of Willie Mather, but the people of Marieville didn't heed them.

A farmer who lives just to the north of Moses Angell hill says his attention was drawn to the excited action of the birds every day. He remarked to his wife that there must be some dead animal on the hill and several times started to look, but his wife told him it was silly.

The murdered boy's body was found in the very spot where the crows cawed loudest and hovered thickest for weeks. Now he regrets not having responded to a signal which he says he has found to be infallible in years of experience.

Crowds viewed the scene of the tragedy yesterday. All were astonished to learn that the body lay a month to near Mineral Spring avenue on an exposed part of the hill without being seen.

Attorney A. Y. Pettine, counsel for Antonio Mariano, the thirteen-year-old boy, accused of the crime, spent a busy day yesterday interviewing witnesses and hunting evidence. He claims to have medical evidence which materially strengthens his client's case.

There is every indication that the hearing in the case will be continued next Thursday, as Attorney Pettine does not wish to proceed with the case until Coroner Penner has reported. He doesn't expect to finish the inquest until the last of the week. There are a dozen witnesses to be heard.

LYNN GIRL IS SECRETLY WED

Mrs. Florence Greenlaw Porter and her husband of a day, Carl S. Porter of Matteapan, returned to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ida Greenlaw at No. 52 Hamilton avenue, Lynn, today, after being secretly married yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Greenlaw was waiting at the door. In one hand she held a yellow slip of paper, a telegram, that bore the words:

"Carl and I are married. Home to-morrow."

The telegram had been sent from Young's Hotel by her daughter.

"Is this true?" she demanded.

The two blushingly nodded.

Mrs. Greenlaw opened her arms, the stern face relaxed, and the bride of a day in another minute was being wept over and blessed and forgiven, all in a breath.

The two left home yesterday morning, saying they were going to Boston to see the Easter parade on Commonwealth avenue. Instead they went to the home of the Rev. A. Franklin Knotts of the First Methodist church of Lynn and were married, having secured a license secretly three weeks ago.

Then they came to Boston for a honeymoon of a day, saw the Easter parade, and returned home.

Mrs. Greenlaw gave the two her forgiveness readily.

"But I do wish you'd let me give you a nice wedding," she protested.

"Well, we wanted to surprise our friends, and put a joke on them," was the answer.

The bride is one of the best known young girls in Lynn. She is twenty-one years old, and an accomplished musician. Porter is the proprietor of a Mattapan store.

Lone Woman Attacked; Burglar Gets Only $5

Cape Robber Agrees to Divide Money With Victim He Gagged in Home.

HARWICHPORT, April 8.—The authorities of this village are today looking for a daring holdup man who operated here last night. The victim was Mrs. Susan Megathlin, who lives alone on Bank street.

Mrs. Megathlin attended an Easter concert at the church last evening. She returning home about 9 o'clock, tried to unlock her door, but found it was already unlocked. Thinking she must have forgotten to lock it, she opened the door and walked in.

She was seized from behind by a man, who quickly tied a stocking around her neck until it nearly choked her. She screamed twice, but he threw her violently to the floor, and, placing his hand over her mouth the burglar threatened to kill her if she made any further outcry. He then demanded her money, under pain of death.

Reaching under the pillow she pulled out one package and left the other, she could not tell which. Later it proved to be the $5 package, but he did not examine it or offer to return half of it. Instead, he tied the towel over her head and face and into her mouth to prevent her from making any outcry.

Then throwing her on the floor he warned her not to stir for more than ten minutes or he would return and shoot her. Leaving her prostrated from fright, the burglar went out the front door quietly.

The entire neighborhood was soon aroused and the search for the robber began.

BOSTON BOAT BURNS AT SEA; 90 ARE SAVED; WIRELESS MAN HERO

Men and Women Prevented by Crew From Leaping Into Sea From Scorching Decks When Panic Sweeps Through Ship

By Wireless to the Boston American.

MONTAUK POINT, April 8, 10 A. M.—Tug Tasco with passengers of the Ontario sailed at 10 o'clock for New London. Assure friends of the passengers that they are all right.

(Signed) DAVIS, Officer of the Watch.

By Wireless to Boston American.

MONTAUK POINT, April 8—9 a. m.—Fire not yet under control. Passengers transferred to the tug Tasco by the life saving crew of Point Judith in their boats, Ditchplain and Hitherplain. Two or three other life saving crews also here. The Tasco will stand by with passengers aboard for a time in case of emergency.

(Signed) WILLIAM H. DAVIS,
Captain of the Watch.

Special Dispatch to Boston American.

All of my passengers are now being transferred with baggage to the tug of the Scott Wrecking Company of New London. All are safe.

(Signed) CAPTAIN BOND.
Steamer Ontario, off Montauk Point.

Passengers landed at New London shortly after noon today told thrilling stories of their experience on the Merchants & Miners' steamer, Ontario, which was found to be on fire early today, off Montauk Point, on her way from Baltimore to Boston.

Roused from their sleep in the darkness of night, hustled from their berths to the deck only to catch a wreath of the smoke that issued from the furnace-like fire in the hold, men and women became frantic with fear.

PASSENGERS SUFFER ON RESCUE TRIP.

So one of them—there were twenty-nine passengers—will ever forget their tragic experience.

But they were all saved. That was the dominant note in the story that they had to tell when they set foot on land. They praised the captain of the boat for his coolness and bravery. They had no word of blame for the conduct of any of those in authority on the Ontario.

Rescued in Open Tug.

But they were almost in a State of collapse, both men and women. The trip from the burning steamer to New London had not been pleasant. A northwest gale swept the sea. There was a snow flurry. The Tasco, the tug in which they came ashore, is an open boat. On it there was little chance of comfort.

Passengers Suffer on Rescue Trip.

The suffering that the passengers experienced on the trip from the grounded steamer to this place because of the severity of the weather served to deaden their recollection of what they had passed through before they were rescued from the burning boat.

The passengers agreed that Captain Bond of the Ontario had the emergency well in hand—that he always had his eye on the safety of the passengers. There was plenty of praise for the men in their efforts to drown the fire—long, hard, heart-breaking work.

Holes were cut in the decks and great streams of water were pumped into the recesses from that city.

Miss Katherine I. Schwabe, Miss Nellie E. Sheehan, A. E. Cahill, and wife; T. H. Sanborn, Mrs. J. F. Bond, Mrs. H. W. Sanborn, T. W. Korney, Frank W. Boyden and Mrs. W. J. Bond, wife of the captain of the ship.

"Thank God Passengers Are Safe."

When J. C. Whitney, president of the company, was communicated with by wire at Baltimore today and told the facts, he said:

"Thank God, the passengers are safe. The boat is a minor consideration compared with the safety of the passengers." In the early morning hours the call for help was sounded all along the Atlantic coast. It was a fierce fire that was discovered between 3 and 4 o'clock. Captain Bond realized that it would take all his seamanship to save his passengers. Wireless Operator Ingalls was the chief hope.

The young man kept steadily at his task. Finally his dynamo was injured by the fire. But the resourceful operator rigged up a storage battery and continued his call for help.

Wireless Gets Action.

New London was first reached. The Scott Wrecking Company sent their tug, Tasco. Then the revenue cutter Acushnet at Woods Hole caught the signal. The Acushnet reached the burning steamer at 8:30, after the New London tug had got there.

In the meantime the life savers of that section of the coast had responded. The Point Judith crew took their two big boats, the Ditchplain and the Hitherplain, and in them the passengers were transferred from the Ontario to the Tasco.

It is no easy task to transfer passengers in a raging sea from a steamer to another boat. Under the conditions today it was extremely dangerous. The passengers were greatly frightened even though the officers of the boat had done all within their power to allay their fears. But finally all of the passengers and part of the crew were safe on the Tasco and they breathed prayers of thankfulness.

Burning Steamship Beached.

The Ontario which had been beached still burned with great fiercety and part of the crew remained on board to drown out the flames if possible. The Tasco and the boats of the life savers hung about the beached vessel, ready to save the crew aboard if they decided to abandon her.

Messages to American.

The AMERICAN received a number of wireless messages from the Ontario through Newport. These messages told the progress of the fire. At 9 o'clock the fire was still burning.

A bulletin sent shortly after 10 o'clock announced that the tug Tasco had started for New London with all the passengers on board. This message, sent by Davis, officer of the watch, asked that the friends of the passengers be assured that they were all safe.

It was said at this time that the crew had succeeded in confining the main flame to the hold, though great tongues of flame shot through the hatchways when the intense heat drove the sailors back from their hot task.

Shortly after 10 a. m. flames burst out of the stern hold and rapidly began to eat their way forward. The captain of the revenue cutter Acushnet ordered his crew in readiness to take off the sailors on the Ontario. The latter, however, showed no disposition to leave, battling desperately with the flames.

The rescuing of the passengers and crew was fraught with greatest difficulty. A high sea was running, and the breaken threatened every moment to dash the life boat, manned by the Montauk Point crew, into atoms as it passed alongside the burning liner.

Fought to Jump Into Sea.

Passengers fought and struggled to jump into the sea and were restrained only with the greatest difficulty. Women shrieked and screamed as the flames burst through the deck under their feet.

Captain Bond and his wheelsman stuck to their post in the pilot house, though the scorching heat forced them to dance nimbly to keep their shoes from being burned off their feet. The paint was burned to a crisp before they left their house.

Her brave captain sent the following message ashore after his passengers had been landed:

"We will not leave the ship, but stand in readiness to do so if the fire drives us off."

A strange feature of the disaster was that the Ontario was beached within 200 feet of the spot where her sister ship, the George Apol, was wrecked nearly twenty years ago.

The life savers of the Montauk Point station, at the first call for help, manned the lifeboat and rowed out through the sea that was whipped to fury by the gale, to the liner. It was fully half an hour before they could get alongside and transfer the first passenger to the boat.

The S. O. S. calls sent out before the dynamo was rendered useless were received all along the Atlantic coast and many vessels and tugs started out to the assistance of the stricken vessel. At New Bedford the revenue cutter Acushnet, with steam up, received the message as soon as it was flashed out. Her anchors were weighed immediately and the captain headed her out to sea.

Point Judith Summons Aid.

The first call for help was received at the Point Judith wireless station, but before a query could be sent, the wireless operator on the ship flashed out the word that the fire had swept up from the afterhead and was forcing him out of the sending house. The spark died in the middle of a word, and the operator here believes that the man on the ship had to flee for his life.

A general call asking all steamers in the vicinity hurry to the assistance of the Ontario was then sent out from the Point Judith station. Orders were given to all the life savers along the coast. The Watch Hill crew started out at once in a big power boat and the life savers at Block Island prepared to hire a similar craft.

In the meantime, with the surf running high and a stiff gale blowing, the ship, under its own power, was beached a mile and a half west of Montauk Point. By this time life savers were on the scene, and immediately went out with the breeches buoy to take off the passengers and crew.

An earlier message from the burning ship had been picked up by the wireless operator at the T. A. S. Smith Company, and the tug Tasco was immediately dispatched to the scene.

Thus first lifesavers to reach the scene were from the Ditch Plain Life Saving Station, which is three miles east of the wreck.

Fire Smouldered Long Time.

According to a member of the crew, the fire had smouldered for some time before it was discovered. Ward was immediately sent to the captain, who ran to the deck without waiting to dress. In the meantime the alarm had spread to the passengers and all the members of the crew. The passengers rushed to the deck, many of them clad only in their night attire.

Heat Frightens Passengers.

Prompt measures were adopted by the captain to avert a panic. In this he and his men succeeded, but only for a few minutes. As the passengers grouped themselves on the deck, the heat from the fire became noticeable and those who were standing over the section where the fire started were forced to leave that part of the ship.

At the first alarm the wireless operator was aroused. Clad only in pajamas, he hurried to his apparatus. Quickly adjusting his instruments, he began sending out his call for help. He stuck to his post until his garment began smoking from the heat, and then he was ordered away by the captain.

Passengers in Panic.

Then the fear among the passengers grew to panic. It was with great difficulty that the captain and members of the crew prevented several frantic persons from jumping overboard.

The only hope of safety rested in beaching the ship and the captain took up a position near the wheelhouse to direct every move. The ship was headed for the nearest point ashore, where large rocks formed the coast line. Many of the passengers, their feet blistered, dropped to their knees and began praying. Others gripped the rail and shrieked in terror.

Before the burning ship had moved half of the distance to the shore, the wheelhouse began to feel the effects of the fire that was raging below. Great clouds of smoke rolled out of the structure and added the terror of the passengers, and at times blinding the view of the captain and the wheelman.

Soon the paint on the wheelhouse began to curl and fall. The blanking in the deck house became so hot that the captain and wheelman were forced to keep crowding in order to keep their feet cool enough to maintain a position.

Encouraged by the captain, the wheelman doggedly held the boat's prow, and in an interval that seemed like years to all aboard, the nose of the ship struck. In a short time the dangerous work of transferring the passengers ashore was started.

The Ontario was due in Boston at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The Ontario was built in 1904, at Camden, N. J., as the 315 feet long, has a beam of forty-two feet and tonnage of 2,200.

On October 5, 1908, the steamer was in collision with the barge Elk Garden in lower Boston harbor. The accident happened about 9:15 P. M., and for a few minute the officers of the boat had a busy time trying to prevent a panic among the ninety passengers. The Ontario was forced to put back to Boston and was docked and delayed for some days to make repairs.

On the Newfoundland coast she encountered a fierce gale off the Jersey coast. Twenty passengers were on board at the time, but it was feared every moment the ship would go ashore. After being in a pounding off Nantucket Light and was tossed about twelve hours before the seas to subside.

Buffeted in 1909 Storm.

In the fearful Christmas storm of 1909, the Ontario again put in to terrific existence on its way from Norfolk to Boston. Off Cape Cod the ship was forced to stand for the full force of the storm, and while passing through Pollock Rip Slue off Monomoy the bottom of the ship several times touched. After the engineer had been passed the captain attempted to make Boston, but was forced to give up, as her bearings the ship was forced over the mighty seas.

Early today a general S. O. S. call was sent up by the steamer Ontario, operated by the Charlestown Navy Yard. The call was sent over the Marconi wireless and picked up and repeated by Norfolk. It asked any vessels in the vicinity of Montauk Point to go to the assistance of the steamer Ontario.

SAVE WOMAN AND 3 MEN ON CHARLES

One young woman and three men were rescued from drowning by officers of the Metropolitan Park Police in the Charles River at Waltham. All were canoe accidents caused by the fast ice floes blowing. The first accident was reported when a couple ranging in the vicinity of Watertown dipped over when they were opposite Metropolitan Park. Another upset when he made easy work of rescuing them. The second accident came shortly after 5 o'clock, when Officer George Coombs rescued the young woman from the water in front of the Riverside Station.

Auto Turns Turtle on Ice-Covered Road

Boston Man and Son Escape Serious Injury in Winchester Accident.

Benjamin F. Jakeman of No. 271 Washington street, Winchester, and his son, Brooks Jakeman, had a narrow escape from death when the automobile in which they were riding turned turtle on the Winchester Parkway, early today. Jakeman and his son were thrown from the machine and escaped with a severe shaking up and multiple bruises. The machine was wrecked.

Jakeman is a Boston manufacturer. He and his son left their home about 6 o'clock for Boston. They headed through the Parkway to the direction of Medford. The roadbed was covered with ice and when they reached a point just before the Wedgemere station the rear wheels skidded on the slippery surface and the auto overturned.

The boy struck the ground first. His father landing on top of him. The steering gear and one of the wheels of the automobile were smashed. Jakeman abandoned the automobile and took a train to Boston.

FOXES KILLING BIRDS IN THE CITY PARKS

Foxes are preying on the city's birds in Franklin Park and the Arnold Arboretum, the residents of West Roxbury claim, and these residents, almost to the last man, Dons, are about to appeal to the City Council to exterminate the foxes.

At last reports the foxes had changed their methods of operating from the Arboretum to Franklin Park, so as to be near the bird house there and close by the egg roosts of the Austin and Pierce farms.

MAINE MAY ALSO PROSECUTE A. W. SHAW

Criminal action, it was learned today, may be brought in the courts of Cumberland County, Maine, against Arthur Wilson Shaw, president of the Shaw Shoe Company of Liverpool, Me., who failed in the Chancery street jail here on an indictment charging him with the larceny of $15,000.

Jacob W. Amick of Portland, Me., Shaw's attorney, declares that Shaw drew a number of the company's money, which was on deposit in the First National bank of Portland, and appropriated the money. He does not know the exact amount.

MORGAN AND MORSE FAIL OF MEETING

FLORENCE, Italy, April 8.—J. Pierpont Morgan was called today whether he had a conference with Charles W. Morse here, and replied: "We certainly did not meet." Mr. Morse did not call on me and it was not for me to go to him." Morse has left Florence now, keeping his destination secret.

MRS. GARDNER BUYS KRONBERG PAINTING

"Preparing for the Dance," the famous painting by Louis Kronberg, is the latest picture to be added to Mrs. Jack Gardner's valuable collection. Local artists are pleased at the selection as it is the production of a Boston girl. Kronberg was born in this city and studied at the Boston Art Museum School and in Paris at Academy Julian, under Benjamin Constant, Jean Paul Laurens and Raphael Collin.

GRAHAME-WHITE FALLS; NEAR DEATH

HENDON, Eng., April 8.—Claude Grahame-White just escaped death today when his biplane, with two mechanics as passengers, was caught by a gust of wind and turned turtle. The machine crashed to the ground. All three men were badly bruised.

200 FALL RIVER FIREMEN STRIKE

FALL RIVER, April 8.—Two hundred firemen are on strike in the mills of thirty-one corporations in this city, according to a statement issued by President Timothy Healey of the International Firemen's Union.

Most of the mills are still running, having brought in men from the yard and also got other employes to take the place of the striking firemen. They ran run this way for about a week.

The Massasoit Manufacturing Company, the American Print Works and the Fall River Iron Works have all granted the strikers' demands for twenty-two cents an hour. It is understood that the Stafford mills will also grant the increase.

Cretic's Smuggling Suspects Are Free

No Evidence to Hold Men in Connection with Alleged "Black Hand" Gang.

The two members of the crew of the White Star liner Cretic, Andrea Schiaffini and Giovanni Gaggero, who were arrested on the charge that they tried to land twenty-seven stowaways from that vessel last week, were today discharged by United States Commissioner Hays at the request of the government, because of lack of evidence to connect them with the plot. The two men sailed for Italy today on the Cretic, upon which the twenty-seven aliens were deported. The police of Boston naught the men on a cable that the worst "Black Hand" men of Italy were being smuggled into Boston.

MURPHY STARTS WORK FOR KOEHLER BOUT

CHICAGO, April 8.—Eddie Murphy of South Boston, who came here two weeks ago with the expectation of playing a return engagement with Packey McFarland at Kenosha, Wis., has started hard training for his Cleveland engagement a week from tonight, when he is to clash with Billy Koehler.

Tom of Another McFarland-Murphy affair still looms in local boxing circles, but thus far McFarland has shown little enthusiasm for his meeting with the former. Packey is stated to pluck off another fight of Quincy on Tuesday night and frankly admits that he can make as much money in the ring in much easier, than by using Murphy's wallops.

18.50 Suits Automatically Reduced From 10.75 to 8.06

Cheviot Suits: all sizes 34 to 42. Coats silk lined.

HUNDREDS OF OTHER LOTS

Filene's Tunnel Bargain Basement

Suits That Didn't Sell and WHY

These suits are part of a lot made to sell for 18.50. First placed on sale at 10.75.

BUT the coats were three inches longer than the latest Vogue because the extreme This style sold less quickly. They are now Automatically Reduced to 8.06.

NOW many prefer this style and many others, we believe, will welcome an opportunity to save 2.69 in addition to the savings at the first price in exchange for the slight difference in having a coat three inches longer, which although it does not happen to be the style for which there is the greatest demand is nevertheless a good staple model.

GLIMPSE OF BRILLIANT EASTER PARADE ON COMMONWEALTH AVENUE

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Of all the glorious days for a fashion parade, Easter was the most glorious in years. There were new hats, new suits, new shoes, new gloves and such flowers everybody had flowers and these seemed of more importance than the Easter hats.

Most people have had their Easter finery for weeks. A month ago most of the fashionable women of society came out in their Spring toggery, but Easter is the time when everybody catches up. It is at Easter that the majority of the feminine world intending to have new suits at all does them for the first time.

It was after the church services that the great Easter parade was seen in Boston. There were hats of all shapes and sizes, untrimmed, trimmed and overtrimmed. They were trimmed in all colors, but as the early season indicated, cerise prevailed. There were derbys, of course, but among the gorgeous array they were happily in the minority. The suits were of all colors but mostly on the strictly tailored lines. There were no panier skirts, however, so the parade progressed fairly rapidly.

There were groups of lads, sub-buds and Vincent Club girls tripping along Commonwealth avenue arm in arm and enjoying the whole sight to the full. There were also many of the prospective brides.

Among those prominent in the parade were Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, her beautiful daughter, Helen, Mrs. Edward H. Graham, Miss Evelyn Thayer, Miss Nora Thayer, Miss Bigelow, Mrs. Edward H. Graham, Miss Blanche Cushing, Miss Edna Paxton, Mrs. J. R. Griffith, Miss Mae Loring, Miss Elsie Ames, Mrs. Francis G. Shaw and Miss Gordon Dexter. In fact the whole of the smart set was out for fashion's great day.

HOSLEY URGES SMOOT BILL

"Pass the Smoot pension bill," advises Massachusetts Department Commander George A. Hosley of the G. A. R. "Except the Sullowav bill the Smoot bill is the most satisfactory pension bill ever drafted, and we are working hard with the members of the National House at the present time.

"I have heard many nothinking people say, when discussing the pensioning of war veterans, that they could not understand how the pension expense to the government increased each year when the Civil War Veterans are dying off by thousands," said Commander Hosley to a reporter.

"Stop a minute and consider that of 2,778,000 men who enlisted in the War of the Rebellion, 2,168,000 were under twenty-one years of age. The present pension law gives all a pension of $12 a month, who are sixty-two years of age and over. Now it is forty-four years since the close of the war and many thousands of veterans have just reached the eligible age.

"Probably the most popular pension bill ever introduced was the Sullowav bill, which provided pensions for all veterans, graded according to age. This I believe to be the only fair way, for when a man gets to be seventy-five years old it costs him more to live than when he was seventy.

"It must not be thought that the Civil War veterans get all the vast amount of pension money that is paid out, for the figures give it that of $150,000,000 that is paid each year, $90,000,000 goes to Civil War veterans and the rest to veterans of the Spanish, Philippine, Mexican and Indian Wars."

PERFUMERY LANDS BOYS BEFORE COURT

NORTH ADAMS, April 18.—The truth of the old saw, "Stolen goods are sweetest," was the downfall of a group of boys who were arraigned here today and charged with the theft of toilet soap and perfumery. It was the overpoweringly sweet odor that hung like an aureole about one of the lads, that led to his arrest. The charge is that the boys looted a car loaded with toilet articles. One of them sampled a bottle of perfumery. The odor was so sweet that he poured a whole bottle over his clothing.

FIGHT TO SAVE 'PEACE ROOM' AT PORTSMOUTH

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 8.—Owing to the plan of several Navy Yard officers to destroy the historic "Peace Conference Room" in the building where the negotiations for ending the war between Russia and Japan were answered and carried out, a storm of indignation has arisen that will make such a move an impossibility.

The different patriotic organizations in and about the city have taken hold of the matter and will confer with the powers-that-be in hope of the preservation.

NIKISCH IN FIRST CONCERT TONIGHT

NEW YORK, April 8.—Arthur Nikisch has arrived in New York to conduct a series of concerts in this country with the London Symphony Society. Nikisch has not been in this country since 1895, when he was conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, a post which he held from 1889. He said:

"I conduct my first concert in Carnegie Hall tonight. After that I start on a strenuous tour which I have only equalled once before in my career, when, with the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, we gave forty-three concerts in forty-five days in such diverse countries as Spain, Austria, Italy and Belgium."

FRENCH AMBASSADOR ADOPTS A MONGREL

WASHINGTON, April 8.—J. J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, delivered an address before the Riding Club. His car ride was in waiting, and just at this stage Jane offered on the scene a small yellow mongrel dog, with streaks of black and white. Straight through a crowd of society folk the canine made for the French Ambassador and looked at him with beseeching eyes. The Ambassador said: "I must take care of that little dog." The footman caught the dog, and Jusserand took him home.

SUFFRAGISTS INVADE LODGE'S HOME TOWN

Senator Lodge's home town of Nahant is to be assailed by the Suffragists, and under the leadership of Mrs. T. P. Curtis of No. 447 Beacon street, who has sprung within a few weeks into a position as leader of the Suffragists here.

Just when the Senator is worried over Japan and Magdalena Bay, word was brought to him of the threatened encroachments.

The campaign will be formally opened in the Town Hall Wednesday evening. Mrs. Curtis opened her Summer home on Swallow's Cave road recently, and has been zealously distributing circulars announcing the rally and inviting every man and woman to attend.

SEEK BAIL FOR MRS. RAYMOND, ACCUSED OF SLAYING HACKETT GIRL

any amount of bail necessary in the court will admit her to freedom.

Whether the application for a change of venue will be pushed will be determined largely by the decision of the court on Attorney Morey's application for admission to bail. If the woman is freed, there will be no objection to waiting till October for trial, and in that case the trial would probably be held in Kennebec County.

Mrs. Raymond has made no complaints under her confinement. Sheriff Richardson does everything in his power to make her days in the prison comfortable for her, and the woman has every attention.

She eats the prison fare, which is very plain, consisting of molasses and bread for breakfast, with beans, bread and tea for dinner, and has thus far made no request for food from outside. She eats lightly, and spends much time in quiet thought.

The woman did not choose to attend the Easter Sunday services in the prison, but, instead, stood by the open window of her cell, where strains of music from a nearby church come to her from time to time.

The judge in whose hands the question of bail rests is Chief Justice William Penn Whitehouse of the Maine Supreme Court, and Attorney Morey has held frequent conferences with this Justice, as well as with Mrs. Raymond and her husband.

ANGELA MORGAN TELLS OF MRS. RAYMOND'S EASTER IN JAIL

By ANGELA MORGAN.

ANGELA MORGAN
LITCHFIELD STUDIO
PHOTO.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 8.—"Oh, my treasure, my treasure, my little girl. If they would only let you stay with me, I could bear anything, even this terrible humiliation."

This mother cry, breaking from the lips of the woman now facing trial, charged with the murder of Mattie Hackett, revealed to me as nothing else could have done the real Elsie Raymond.

I was admitted to the presence of Mrs. Raymond during the most tragic scene that has taken place since her indictment and arrest on Saturday.

It was Easter Sunday. Her husband, Burton Raymond, her little four-year-old girl, Evelyn, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Poole, had just come to the jail to see her and were grouped about her as I entered. The husband had brought Easter lilies. The child had brought her doll.

Up to this hour Mrs. Raymond had received no visitors. Refusal had steadily been made to all requests to see behind prison bars this remarkable woman who, having escaped arrest for seven years, though under suspicion in connection with this astounding crime, finds herself flung suddenly upon the world's screen of events, actually charged with the murder. It was with difficulty I persuaded her attorney, Frank A. Morey, to permit me a glimpse of Mrs. Raymond and a hand shake, and when at last he consented I had to turn my eyes away for a moment from the pathetic group, for I felt that I was in the presence of tragedy too sacred to be looked upon.

SAD EASTER FOR FAMILY

It was in the sheriff's parlor that they had gathered, mother and child and father and sister. Outside, the Easter sunshine poured a flood of gold upon happy passing throngs, in homes everywhere there was music and family cheer. In every church throughout the city glad voices rose in anthems of praise. But here, in this room in the county jail, sat the saddest group to be found anywhere this Easter Day.

"Don't cry, Ma, Ma. Ma, don't cry. Dollie is here. See, dollie wants to comfort you." Little Evelyn, blue-eyed, fair-faced, gazed up at her mother, with a quivering chin. She was like a doll herself, her yellow hair curling under its dainty cap, her delicate cheeks tinged with pink. She could not understand why mama cried. She could not understand why papa, sitting with bowed head in his chair, tried to speak and then gave it up, while tears ran down his harassed cheeks. Mrs. Raymond looked up at me, with swimming eyes. "If you only knew what a treasure my little girl is, if you only knew. It seems to me I can bear anything, if she is only with me."

"Mrs. Raymond," I said, "I have come to tell you that you have my sympathy. I am sorry you must be here today of all days." She stood up and grasped my hands, and a rush of tears blinded her. "It is good to have sympathy. I—I need it—I" Her voice broke and she sank upon the divan, pressing her hands to her eyes. "We had planned such a different Easter. If I had dreamed," Burton Raymond's large comforting hand went out to his wife's and he tried to quiet her. Mrs. Poole, standing beside her with Easter lilies in her hand, stroked her shoulder soothingly. But her own face was grey with grief.

Elsie Hobbs Raymond has been pictured as a woman curiously calm and cold, indifferent even in the face of the suspicion and notoriety that have pursued her for the past seven years. But the Elsie Raymond with whom I talked in the County Jail refutes most vigorously all pictures I have seen of her through means of such description.

Whatever may have been her demeanor in the past, whatever may have been her outer aspect, I am convinced that it was the real Elsie Raymond, I saw and talked with this Easter Day. The woman whose hands I grasped, into whose eyes I looked, has never been callous or cold or indifferent. She may have seemed so.

It was only a mask she wore to conceal her real nature. The mask sometimes of the over-sensitive, the shrinking, the emotional women who fear to express emotion, or who through training or tradition, have acquired the habit of repression. The mask that dropped from her this day revealed a woman warm-hearted, acutely sensitive, tender, capable of tremendous suffering. In fact, a real woman just like other women, who love and suffer and grieve—and sacrifice.

To look at Mrs. Raymond does not show this terrible depth, this capacity for suffering and big emotion. But in that she is like other women, too, for whoever suspects the blue-eyed, soft, frail, fair-haired creatures of anything big or keen, or overpowering in the way of emotion, yet, underneath that softness and home simplicity, that seeming harmless, that misleading calm, runs the network of a million sensitive nerves. Nerves of feeling, of understanding, of responsiveness that make woman's nature forever baffling to man. Elsie Raymond, cold or indifferent. Then few, if any, have understood her psychology, or else it is the first time she has allowed herself to be truly seen.

She is a woman, who can suffer to the quick, as Elsie Raymond. She is a woman to be intensely loving, intensely true to whom love of husband and home and the absorbing fact of life. How does she look, what is her type, this woman, who, after seven years of oblivion, leaps into the lime light and is the central figure in this stunning crime.

Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond is a woman slightly above medium height, blonde, well rounded of figure, though somehow suggesting the contrary. Perhaps it is the fairness of her coloring that makes her seem more delicate or fragile than she really is. At any rate, her appearance contradicted the preconceived opinion I had of her as a powerful and unkom type of woman. She has a good clear, healthy complexion, straightforward blue eyes, a pleasant mouth, noble and womanly, and her hair is combed neatly, brought back from her forehead. She is just such wholesome, comely, young matron as one finds in the average country town or village, her whole personality bespeaking a life lived simply and naturally with domestic duties as its chief aim and joy. She was dressed when I saw her in a becoming brown dress of some soft wool fabric, with gimpe and sleeves of white, braided with brown. The effect was tasteful and extremely neat.

"Someone brought me flowers this morning," Mrs. Raymond told me, after a pause. "It seems so good to have anyone think of me that way. It made me less lonely."

Little Evelyn pressed close to her mother's side. "It's Easter, mama. You mustn't cry." "Yes, I know. I know it's Easter." With a passionate gesture, she clasped the child close to her breast, while her tears flowed freely again.

Child May Join Mother.

As I withdrew into the hall outside, accompanied by Attorney Morey, County Attorney Joseph Williamson and Jailer Choate, I witnessed a consultation among these men as to taking steps to bring little Elsie to live at the jail with her mother. "It is pitiful Mrs. Raymond suffering over the separation from that little girl. Somehow, if we can manage it, we must arrange for quarters here at the jail, so she can be near her mother during ten dreary waiting."

County Attorney Williamson agreed that the plan would be excellent unless it might be objected that the jail surroundings were not the proper atmosphere for a child.

"She is too young to be affected, and besides—she could be given accommodation in the living quarters and need not visit the cell at all," said Attorney Morey. But Raymond is willing to pay for it, I know, and he wants to do everything in his power to make his wife's imprisonment less dreary. The child is the only means of comfort to the poor woman just now."

Visit, Her One Joy.

All day Mrs. Raymond had looked forward to that visit from husband and child as the one gleam in her terrible darkness. Seated in her cell in the southeast corner of the jail, in the woman's department, she had waited patiently, while gazing out on the mockery of Easter sunshine. The wonderful view from her window of hills and valleys, waking under the touch of Spring, the marvelous sweep of the Kennebec country lying outspread like a panorama beneath her eyes, the flocks of church-going people, all these had only intensified her misery. "My little girl," was her one thought. "My treasure, my little Evelyn." And not until she held the child in her arms did the gloom of Easter break for her.

At the home of Thomas Poole, No. 115 Grove street, where Evelyn and her father are staying, Mrs. Poole, the sister-in-law, said the family was overwhelmed by the blow that had fallen upon it. "I cannot say anything more just now," she replied to my questions. "We all know what a terrible thing it is. No words can express what it means to us all."

MRS. SNYDER ARRAIGNED FOR SCISSORS KILLING

NEW YORK, April 8.—A strange case of mingled love and tragedy came to light today when a woman who says she is Mary F. Snyder was arraigned in the coroner's court charged with killing Walter J. Snyder who, she says, was her husband, in their apartments in Historic Hall, No. 920 St. Nicholas avenue, some time yesterday. She sobbed as she reiterated her declaration of innocence.

At the same time that the woman prisoner was arraigned accused of stabbing the man to death with a pair of seven-inch scissors, the police learned that many women had figured in Snyder's life before he met the defendant and even after they became acquainted. Before the fact that Snyder had died from several fragments of the scissor blades in his breast the police were at a loss to account for several strange features of the case.

Had Varied Career.

They had no information except what the woman had furnished, and she clung tenaciously to a declaration that Snyder's death had been accidental. The prisoner told the police that her maiden name was Mary F. Kern and that her home is in Morristown, N. J., where she met Snyder in 1899. Six years later she declares they were married. The police learned from another source that Snyder and the woman had quarreled and separated in the meantime and that in 1908 he married Bertha Edna Yaeger of Detroit, Mich.

In the following year, the police say, Snyder eloped with Helen Caulfield, the daughter of a well-to-do contractor in New Britain, Ct. Miss Caulfield was working for Snyder as his stenographer at the time of his elopement. The Detroit woman is said to have secured a divorce in the following year 1910, which was followed by Snyder's marriage to Miss Caulfield.

Known in Sporting Circles.

Snyder lived during 1911 in this city with another woman, the police said, but they did not reveal her name. The authorities learned that Snyder and the woman who is at present under arrest took up their abode at Historic Hall on January 15, 1912.

Snyder was well known in sporting circles, having been manager of "Sports of the Times." His mother and brother who live in Haledon, a suburb of Paterson, N. J., have claimed the body, but a postmortem examination will be held before it is removed from the morgue.

Snyder died from four stab wounds in his right side, which were inflicted by the blades of a pair of eight inch shears. He was found dead when persons summoned by the woman arrived and found him lying stretched in the white enameled tub.

The shears which inflicted the death wounds were found lying on the woman's dresser but no other evidence of the slaying could be found.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the woman, who was known at the apartment house as "Mrs. Snyder" called two hallboys, and asked them to summon a physician, explaining that her husband was injured.

Unclothed in Bathtub.

Upon entering the bathroom the two hallboys saw the man lying at full length and unclothed in the bathtub. Blood was trickling from four stab wounds in his left side.

Dr. Roger O'Neil arrived at the apartment soon afterward. Snyder's body was carried into the bedroom.

Detectives Hyman and Calvin were sent to the house to make an investigation. They questioned Mrs. Snyder and she gave her version of the strange case.

Without showing the least emotion, and displaying none concern in the arrangement of her hair than in the gruesome topic on which she was being interrogated, the woman told the detectives the story:

"We arose a little before 1 o'clock and Mr. Snyder went immediately to the bathroom to bathe. He was absent from the room for a few minutes and during that time I was combing my hair. While I was standing in front of my mirror he returned to the bedroom in his underclothes. His hands were wet, and he began throwing the water on me, apparently enjoying my discomforture immensely. I did not feel well and I asked him to stop throwing the water on me, but he persisted in doing it, displaying great glee when I became visibly annoyed.

Picked Up Shears in Fun.

"Stop it Walter," I told him and when he continued to do it I exclaimed: 'You don't know what I might do to you if you make me real angry.'

"He was greatly amused at that remark, and dared me to do as I pleased.

"A pair of shears were lying on my bureau and in fun I picked them up and pretended to run at him with them, expecting him to retreat. He did not do so, however, standing still and grabbing my wrists instead. We were both laughing then and began to tussle around the room.

"Suddenly he gave an exclamation of pain, and dropped my hands. He still had the scissors had stabbed him, but did not appear to be badly hurt at all. I looked at the wound and it appeared nothing more than a scratch to me. Walter then left the bedroom, returning to the bathroom and I continued with my dressing.

"I had completely forgotten the incident when my attention was attracted by the absolute quietness in the bathroom. Then I remembered that Walter had been in the bathroom for an unusually long time.

"I went to the door and called, but received no response. I then opened the door and found Walter lying in the tub. Then I call the hallboys."

Tells Conflicting Stories.

In giving a history of herself the woman told stories that were somewhat conflicting. When first asked who she was she declared she was Mrs. Snyder." When the detectives asked her if she was actually married to Snyder the woman refused to answer orally, but shook her head in the negative.

In a search of the apartment after the woman's arrest the police found a union suit obviously one belonging to Snyder with four holes in the right side in the same location as the wounds in Snyder's body. The underwear had been carefully washed and hung in the kitchen to dry.

This and the absence of any great amount of blood in the bathroom or in any other part of the apartment is looked upon as significant proof by the police of the falsity of the part of the tale told by the woman.

RAIN AND WARMER FOR COMING WEEK

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Temperatures this week will be near the seasonal average throughout the country, with rains generally light and local, according to the weekly bulletin. "A change to considerably cooler weather," says the bulletin, "will overspread the eastern districts, but it will be followed by rising temperature on Tuesday and for several days there after."

LEONARD D. AHL AND MRS. AHL, WHO WAS MRS. HEATON

AT TOP MRS. ROBERT HEATON LEONARD D. AHL

Mrs. Robert C. Heaton today became the bride of Leonard D. Ahl of Pride's Crossing, at the residence of her brother, John S. Curtis of Storrow Hill, Beverly Farms. Society people in the Back Bay, along the North Shore and at Palm Beach, who had been interested in the romance of several years' standing, were disappointed in not receiving cards, but the couple carried out their original intentions of having a quiet wedding, principally for the reason the groom's mother is an invalid. The house was prettily decorated with Easter lilies. The Rev. A. E. George officiated.

Robert C. Heaton, the first husband of the bride, died a number of years ago. After her husband's death, Mrs. Heaton, who was Miss Fannie Curtis, and a daughter of Mrs. Hall Curtis of No. 3 Spruce street, Boston, divided her time between the home of her brother in Beverly Farms and Palm Beach. It was at Palm Beach that Mrs. Heaton met Mr. Ahl.

Leonard Ahl has been looked upon in Boston for many years as one of the eligible bachelors. He is a member of the Myopia Hunt, New York Tennis and Racquet, Boston Athletic, Country and Union clubs. At one time he was chairman of the board of both trustees under the late ex-Mayor Hibbard.

It was while Mrs. Heaton and Ahl were at Palm Beach last Winter that Ahl forgot his bachelor vows. There were many brilliant affairs given in honor of Mrs. Heaton and Ahl after the announcement of the betrothal, but next to the devotion given to Mrs. Heaton, Ahl gave his attention to his invalid mother. Mrs. Heaton returned from Palm Beach and took up her residence at Beverly Farms, while Ahl brought his mother back to Pride's Crossing.

OPERA SINGERS OFF FOR EUROPE ON THE CRETIC

Fifty members of the Boston Opera Company's chorus and several of its principals were among the 285 cabin passengers who went aboard the Cretic to sail for Europe at flood tide today.

Another opera singer was aboard also, but he was hoping against hope that he would be allowed to return before the liner sailed. He was Luigi Imperator, who was among the twenty-seven stowaways found when the Cretic arrived on this side. The remaining twenty-six were reconciled to being returned, but Luigi bemoaned his fate most vigorously. An insane immigrant who came over in the steerage of the ship was deported also.

The Cretic is bound for Genoa and Naples. The Cretic was scheduled to leave Saturday, but instead was drydocked in the Navy Yard for repairs to her tail shaft and the insertion of a new propeller.

E. Barocchi, secretary to Director Henry Russell, accompanied by Mrs. Barocchi, sailed on the Cretic and later will join Director Russell at Milan. Others of the company on board are Rodolfo Fornari, Attilio Paternostro and Alfredo Ramella.

Artistic Frescoes are Uncovered in Pompeii

ROME, April 8.—Further details are given of the discoveries in the Street of Abundance in Pompeii. A newly uncovered fresco represents the carrying of the image of Cybele to the shrine of Dionysius, which is in a gabled niche of the wall of a house which contains his bust. Worshippers surround the goddess and men are depicted passing poles through rings in the sides of the stage on which the image is being carried, precisely as images of the sailors are now carried through the streets of Naples.

The EVENING AMERICAN guarantees to advertisers the largest circulation by far of any daily newspaper sold at 300,000 more than the next largest evening paper, and over 100,000 more than all the other Boston evening papers combined. Circulation books open to all.

START MINES, DEFYING UNION

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 8.—In open defiance of the miners' union, operations in the anthracite field were started today at two waterless, but the first move of the companies created no serious trouble.

ITALY PLACES ORDER FOR 558 CANNON

PARIS, April 8.—The Montitocon gun factory has received an order from the Italian government for ninety-three batteries of quick-firing guns of seventy-five millimetre calibre with mobile axis. There will be 558 cannon in the consignment and the cost is figured at $1,000,000.

WINCHESTER AFTER RECKLESS AUTOISTS

The Winchester police, under the direction of Chief McIntosh, have started a crusade against reckless autoists. In different sections of the town, the police are on the lookout for violations of the auto laws. The numbers of three-piece automobiles have been taken and the police will keep on the crusade until the illegal infractions of the law cease.

Thirty Dead, Many Homeless, in Mississippi Flood

Hundreds Still Menaced by River in Lower Places; Damage $10,000,000.

Thirty thousand people homeless.
Two thousand square miles are flooded.
Thirty persons drowned.
Ten million dollars in property destroyed.
These are the results of two weeks of floods in he Mississippi Valley.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 8.—Government engineers and officials of State boards committing the ravages of the Mississippi from Illinois to Arkmsas, today issued estimates of the flood damage to date.

Water is pouring into Arkansas through three new breaks in the levee south of Memphis. Since these gate way several hundred square miles are subject to flooding. Railroad traffic in these sections is practically paralyzed.

Hundreds of persons are still menaced by the river at places in lower Missouri, northwest Tennessee and Arkansas. They are marooned in housetops, in trees and on anchored rafts directly in the current of the rampaging stream.

Today the Weather Bureau stated that the flood situation in Arkansas opposite and south of Memphis is greatly improved. The crevasses near Modoc, Ark., has flooded all of that section from Oldtown to Helena, but the latter city is still protected by the levees.

The river is falling at all points from Memphis to Cairo today. The country in Arkansas, opposite Memphis, for six hundred square miles, is under water from five to ten feet. Railroad traffic over the Rock Island, Cotton Belt, Frisco and St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Roads has been cut off. The Rock Island established a steamboat communication today between Memphis and Madison, Ark., to transfer passenger, mail and express.

Marrooned passengers fill Jonesboro, Ark. They will be routed back via St. Louis and other points to their destination.

Mayor Crump today established a refuge camp at the Tri-State fair grounds to care for the hundreds coming into Memphis from the inundated sections. Governor Hooper ordered supplies and provisions sent here.

Help reached Tiptonville, Tenn., today. The crevasses in the main levees near that town yesterday relieved the situation, although backwaters are rising at Reelfoot lake. At Greenville, Miss., where the river is rising, hundreds of men are working to raise the levees. High water has reached Marianna, Ark. Today a tented city sprung up on the outskirts of that town, where hundreds of sufferers are sheltered.

The situation at Barfield, Osceola and Blytheville, Ark., are so much improved that the Cotton Belt Railroad is arranging to open one of its branch lines. In Memphis, the backwater from Bayou Gayoso is receding.

Our traffic has been resumed over one of the main lines that was put out of business. Friday Mayor Crump has begun cleaning up that portion of the district that was under water for almost a week. Considerable water still remains in the city, but the crisis has passed and by the end of this week, engineers say, normal conditions will have been reached.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 8.—The Rideau River has risen ten feet in twenty-four hours, and today almost submerged the Ottawa suburbs of East Ottawa and Clarkstown.

WINOOSKI RIVER ON FLOOD RAMPAGE IN CITIES IN VERMONT

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 8.—The Winooski river, swollen by rain and melting snow, is on the flood here. Main and State streets in this city are under water and the business section of Barre, six miles below here, is reported flooded. The river is still rising.

The ice went out of the Winooski river and the Worcester branch here and it was believed that all danger had passed. But temperature rose and the snow, in some places still several feet deep, melted rapidly. The rain began to fall, adding to the volume of water.

The river first broke from its bounds at Barre.

PROF. ROTCH OF HARVARD DEAD

Professor A. Lawrence Rotch established the Blue Hill Observatory in 1885.

Discovered how to obtain data in air by means of instruments attached to kites in 1894.

Obtained first meteorological records over ocean by means of kites in 1901.

Conducted most interesting wireless experiments by means of kites in 1899.

Made Chevalier of Legion of Honor of France and received Prussian Order of the Crown in 1902 and of the Red Eagle in 1905 in recognition of his meteorological work.

Made first observations high above ocean with kites in 1901.

First man to make observations from five to ten miles above American continent with balloons in 1904.

Professor A. Lawrence Rotch of Harvard, founder of the Blue Hill Observatory and one of the world's foremost authorities on meteorology, is dead at his home, No. 235 Commonwealth avenue, after a five days' illness from appendicitis. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Emmanuel Church.

Abbott Lawrence Rotch was known throughout the civilized world as one of the really great scientific men of the century, for his achievements in meteorology. He was born in Boston January 6, 1861, the son of Benjamin Smith and Annie Bigelow Rotch. He was educated in private schools and by a tutor and continued his studies in Paris, Florence, Berlin and Boston. He was graduated a bachelor of science from the Institute of Technology in 1884 and awarded the honorary degree of master of arts by Harvard University in 1891.

He established the Blue Hill Observatory in 1885 as a private meteorological station, and supported and directed it since. His work was of such importance in the world of science that he is ranked by many with Benjamin Franklin as a student of the upper air. His observations in his chosen field were received in every country of the globe as authoritative.

A Physician's Report on Tuberculosis Medicine

"Have used Eckman's Alterative in several cases of tubercular glands of the neck, with excellent results every time. In one case it cost me $50, for the girl was put on it only until she could arrange to be operated on, and in a short time an operation was not needed. I suppose your records are just as fine as of old. You know my faith in it."

Eckman's Alterative is effective in other forms. Read what Mrs. Garvin says:

Idaho Falls, Idaho.

"Gentlemen: I have gained twenty-two pounds since last February, and am now in excellent health. She is now four months old. I have been waiting since she was born to see how it would get along. I am now doing all my work, have been ever since she was four weeks old, and I am steadily gaining. I do not cough or raise anything at all. I believe my lung trouble is cured."

(Signed Affidavit) MRS. M. H. GARVIN.

Note—Mrs. Garvin is the mother of seven children.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, such as upsetting the system. It does not contain opium, cocaine or other harmful drugs. Sold by all druggists. Scott, Houghton & Bowne, Drug Dogs., and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

History of the Civil War

(READY NEXT SUNDAY)

is a heart-gripping, vivid story of the anguish, suffering and peril which our fathers endured to make forever secure the great United States whose protection and benefits we enjoy today.

EXCERPT FROM SECTION 4
READY NEXT SUNDAY

"The old flag was kept flying until a shot cut off its staff and it fell to the ground at a little past noon. It was caught up, carried to the ramparts and there replanted by Sergeant Peter Hart, Major Anderson's faithful servant and friend.

"When the flag at Sumter fell, the insurgents shouted, for they regarded its downfall as a token of submission. A boat instantly shot out from Cummings Point, bearing an officer who held a white handkerchief on the point of his sword as a flag of truce. He landed at the wharf at Fort Sumter, and, hurrying to the nearest port-hole, he begged a soldier to let him in. The faithful man refused.

"'I am General Wigfall, of Beauregard's staff, and want to see Major Anderson,' he cried.

"The soldier said: 'Stand out there until I can call the Commander.'

"'For God's sake,' cried Wigfall, 'let me in; I can't stand out here in the firing.'

"He ran around to the sallyport but was there confronted by the blazing ruins. Then the poor fellow, half dead with fright, ran around the fort waving his white handkerchief toward his fellow insurgents, to prevent their firing; but it was in vain. He begged him piteously to raise a white flag.

"'You are on fire,' he said, 'and your flag is down.'

"He was interrupted by one of the officers, who said: 'Our flag is not down.'

"Holding out his sword and handkerchief to one of the officers, he said: 'Will you hoist this?' 'No sir,' was the reply, 'it is for you, General Wigfall, to stop them.'

"At length consent was given to hoist a white flag over the ramparts, for the sole purpose of holding a conference with Major Anderson, who was sent for. Wigfall repeated his false story that he had come from Beauregard, and on assuring Anderson that the latter acceded to the Major's terms—the evacuation of the fort on the 15th—Anderson allowed the white flag to be hoisted, and Wigfall left. Seeing this, a deputation came from Beauregard, who informed Anderson that Wigfall had not seen their chief for two days. Indignant because of the foul deception, Anderson declared the white flag should immediately come down, but he was persuaded to leave it until a conference should be held with Beauregard.

"Major Anderson evacuated the fort, but did not surrender it; and he carried away with him the garrison flag, which, just four years afterward, tattered and torn, was again raised by the hands of Anderson (then a major-general) over all that remained of Fort Sumter—a heap of ruins."

COLLEGE GIRLS END THEIR ROMP

The annual Wellesley romp along the North and South Shores ended today. From Scituate to Rockport 250 Wellesley undergrads, their sun and wind tanned faces gloomy at thought of going back to the scholastic grind out on Lake Waban, set about packing up sweaters, stocking caps, heavy outing boots, coats and other paraphernalia of vacation time. College reopens tomorrow.

At Easter time each year comes the conquest of the Shores. Many of the Wellesley girls come from distant cities. West or South. It isn't practicable for them to return home for the ten days' Easter vacation. So it has become the custom to form parties, intimate friends grouping together, and trip off to Marblehead, Rockport, Gloucester, all the little cape towns, and to Scituate and the other resorts along the South Shore.

As Spring comes the old salts of Gloucester and the other fishing towns have come to look forward with delight to the coming of the girls. Whiskers are combed out, "sou'westers" are slicked up, boots are greased and shined, pet corncob pipes are cleaned and fumigated—and then come the girls.

Indifferent to Hardships.

They're a laughing, gay and cheerful lot, hair a-flying, sweater-clad, caring nothing at all for a thorough drenching on a sail across the harbor, indifferent to hardships that would send shudders up and down each trim little spine, were she spirited more conventionally, and busy about her college pursuits.

Just to illustrate. Here are a few of the things half a dozen of them did on a sail from Gloucester. For the first time in their experience they went sailing, "outside."

Were seasick?

Not a bit of it.

They sang.

They hung over the bow and splashed their hands in the spray.

They climbed out on the bowsprit and scandalized the skipper, who sent a sailor along to see no harm came.

They steered the boat.

They tried to climb the rigging, and would have done it but for the genial captain, who feared they would go overboard.

PARIS SCORNS PANNIER SKIRT

PARIS, April 8.—The judgment of Paris on what is to be worn by smart women this Spring was at last given on Easter Sunday at Auteuil on the occasion of the $10,000 Prix du Président de la Republique.

Contrary to all expectations, the pannier skirt has found hardly any favor. In fact, the Marie Antoinette style was almost disregarded. Only two or three examples were to be seen, and these were worn by maniskins employed by the most fashionable makers.

Quite new shades of pale green and nondescript blues were a predominant feature of the new fashions shown, soft taffeta, generally shot, leading the particularity to the novel hues. Most of these are called by fancy names, such as "Attila blue" and "messaline green."

Another remarkable element was the total absence of large hats, small, square-crowned hats trimmed with "hussar osprey" being the favorites. There was such a wealth of osprey today that the crowd, seen from a distance, presented the aspect of a smart cavalry regiment. A fashion expert, remarking this, said that there were, it was estimated, not less than $50,000 worth of ospreys at Auteuil.

Skirts Still Clinging.

Pompadour silk, suggesting our grandmothers' silk dresses, with small and large flowers hand-painted on sober-hued backgrounds, was very popular. The skirts showed an inclination to be as clinging as ever, and were gracefully draped to a knot at the back.

There were, however, some striking novelties. There were many flos of the "Hayadere" and "Furreau" styles, generally of sun-rayed pleated soft silk, finished with sashes of the same material tightly swathed round the hips and gathered to a knot in front, the knot giving a decidedly Eastern appearance. These were usually accompanied by white coats of brocade silk or plain rich satin.

Two trousers skirts of soft clinging silk cut in such a direct fashion that hardly any difference could be noticed from the ordinary draped skirts, appeared today quite pleasing to some of the same crowd that mobbed the wearers of harem skirts last season. It is, however, thought unlikely that they will gain any ground in society except, perhaps, with some eccentrics.

Two mannikins who made a sensational entrance with the same split skirts as were described in these dispatches a fortnight ago met with scarcely any success, the light breeze preventing the folds of the gowns from falling gracefully and making the two girls appear today more as if dressed for circus fancy riding than for witnessing a steeplechase. Finding the hugely amused crowd rather uncomfortable, they withdrew after a few minutes.

Crystal Beaded Stockings.

The greatest novelty seen this afternoon consisted of open-mesh stockings adorned with crystal beads, which glittered in the sun at every movement of the wearer, giving a rich, finishing touch to very handsome gowns.

TIME IS SET FOR RICHESON PLEA

The petition for the commutation of the sentence of Clarence W. T. Richeson from death to life imprisonment will be argued before Governor Foss by Attorneys William A. Morse and John L. Lee the last week in April.

This time was fixed today at a thirty-minute conference which former Senator Morse held with the Governor at the State House.

"It was arranged," said Mr. Morse at the close of the conference, "that Mr. Lee and I shall appear before the Governor any day during the final week of April to present our petition and reasons for the commutation of sentence.

"Mr. Lee is coming from Virginia in time to make the fight with me. We have not yet drawn up any petition. Everything will be ready to proceed any day during the last week, but we have not settled upon any definite date.

At the Executive Chambers it was announced that Governor Foss would hear the case properly by counsel for Richeson and that he had informed Mr. Morse he would submit the petition and data to the Executive Council.

"We discussed details of procedure and I agreed to appear toward the latter part of the month," said Mr. Morse at his office this noon. "Mr. Richeson is fairly well. I saw him Friday."

SALEM SMALLPOX IS UNDER CONTROL

The Salem Board of Health has issued a bulletin to the effect that the prompt repression measures undertaken by the board now have the smallpox epidemic under control, in spite of the fact that five new cases have been reported, making forty-two cases in all.

The Board of Health issued orders to manufacturers who employ help in the South Salem district that their help must all be vaccinated before they would be permitted to work.

The United Shoe Machinery Company at Beverly employes about 1,500 hands, and none of these went to work today until they had presented a vaccination certificate from a physician.

BANCROFT PLAN TO BOOM PORT

General Hugh Bancroft, chairman of the Port Directors of Boston, believes that publicity would result in increased transAtlantic passenger business for Boston, and says:

"Boston ought to be advertised as a passenger port. Everybody in the United States who purchased a ticket for Europe ought to be informed what excellent passenger facilities this port offers, now, this minute, this season. People buying tickets for the United States from Europe should have information available wherever they buy their tickets of the advantages of coming to America via Boston.

"There is nobody to tell them about Boston. They are deluged with information about Montreal and the St. Lawrence route by the lines having their principal American terminals in Montreal, and, of course, they know all about New York.

"The steamship lines with services from Boston also have services from New York and Montreal, and they have no particular reason for wishing to divert traffic from those ports to Boston.

"It is up to the city of Boston herself to do this, and it seems to me to be particularly up to the port directors, but how are we going about it?

"We haven't funds available to enter upon such a campaign, no matter how valuable we think it might be. It would not be good policy to spend any of the $9,000,000 for any purpose but the harbor improvement, because we know that this sum, vast as it is, will not be nearly enough.

"I have just come upon a striking illustration of how they prepare for the future abroad," he added. "Here is a United States consul's report from Marseilles. It tells of the building at that port of two dry docks. One of them will be 1,250 feet and the other 1,500 feet long.

"As the largest ship in the world today is only 900 feet, you can appreciate their foresight, for they are preparing for vessels almost twice as big as the world knows today.

"The cost of these dry docks will, of course, be tremendous, but the French feel sure that they will be repaid in one way or another. I wish we could meet the same liberal spirit here."

WORKING THEIR WAY AROUND THE WORLD

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—Sidney E. Francis, son of former Governor David R. Francis of Missouri, is waiting among the San Francisco water front, hoping to catch a sailing ship on which he and his companions, Arthur Urquhart Brown of New York and George H. Little of St. Louis may sail for their long journey around the world. "The trip, agrees with me splendidly," said Francis. "We are not broke; we are not beating our way around the world, but working our way."

Waste-clogged bowels, torpid liver and decaying food in stomach cause the sick headache, gas, backache, sallowness, biliousness and indigestion.

All women get bilious, headachy and constipated—simply because they don't exercise enough. They don't eat coarse food, or enough fruit and green vegetables. Those are nature's ways of keeping the liver and thirty feet of bowels active; but very few women employ them. The next best way is delightful, fruity Syrup of Figs.

Nearly all ills of women can be overcome with Syrup of Figs alone. There is no need to have sick headache, backache, dizziness, stomach sour and full of gases, bilious spells, sallowness, coated tongue, bad breath, bad complexion, nervousness and depression. The surest and safest remedy is one or two teaspoonfuls of delicious Syrup of Figs. Try this tonight—you'll feel splendid in the morning when the sour bile, clogged-up waste and poisonous matter have been gently but thoroughly moved on and out of your system, without nausea, griping or weakness. Your head will be clear, complexion rosy, breath sweet, stomach regulated; no more constipation, gases, pains and aches.

It is simply a matter of keeping your stomach, liver and bowels clean and regular. Then you will always be well—always look and feel your best.

But get the genuine—the old reliable. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrups sometimes substituted to fool you. The true, genuine, bears the name California Fig Syrup Company; look for this on the label.

TWO ARRESTS IN LOWELL STRIKE

LOWELL, April 8.—Stanley Cyrk, and another man who refused to give his name, were arrested by the police here today, during an outbreak between strikers and workers in front of the Appleton and Hamilton mills.

The trouble followed a parade of 2,000 cheering, booting strikers, who, armed with every variety of noise-making instrument, paraded through the streets in the mill districts.

"Don't Expect an Angel, or Believe Man Too Implicitly," Other Points on List.

Mrs. Owen A. Connor, married last June to a man connected with the Boston office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and who is planning a divorce proceeding against him, has learned enough in her brief nuptial experience to enable her to write a bonquet of "Don'ts" for girls.

Mrs. Connor ascertained the facts by her own detective work upon which she will base her suit for divorce. Seen at the home of friends in Winthrop while her court action is pending, Mrs. Connor sat down and penned the following—injunctions learned from her own experience:

Don't marry a man merely to be provided with a home.

Don't believe him to implicitly.

Don't be deceived by a man's mere outward polish.

Don't marry a man unless you know all about him and are satisfied.

Don't let him hurry you from place to place without giving a good reason after marriage.

Don't lavish too much affection upon your husband.

Don't let him have any of your savings unless you are sure that they will be used for the betterment of you both.

Don't expect an angel.

One of Mrs. Connor's greatest troubles after she was married was to get her husband to settle down. They were always flitting about from place to place. The bride was kept gesticulating most of the time between Boston and New York.

"Once my husband and I were together seventeen days," said Mrs. Connor, "and that was the longest we were ever together."

To Overworked Women

Are you one of the great army of women who through force of circumstances have had to do more than your rightful share of work? In your weakened condition you have almost lost all hope of ever enjoying that health and strength that should be yours.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

NO ALCOHOL NO NARCOTICS

For over forty years has been recommended for just such cases as yours. Hundreds of thousands of women have benefited by it.

You, too, will find it a good, honest, square deal Restorative Tonic and Strength-giving Nervine and Regulator—compounded and carefully adapted to act in harmony with woman's peculiar, delicate and ever-sensitive organism. It makes weak women strong, sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over forty years ago.

Dr. Pierce's Great Family Doctor Book, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1,000 pages, answers in Plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of wrapping and mailing only. In French cloth binding.

One Of Many

Mrs. G. R. Williams, of Lynchburg, Va., wrote: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was not able to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took, in all, five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework, and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female troubles to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It is the only medicine on earth."

AMATEUR BOXERS OPEN TRIAL BOUTS FOR TITLES TONIGHT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

ENTRY LIST FOR READVILLE RACES SHOWS INCREASE

Amateur Boxers in Trial Bouts

100 Ring Stars Battle Tonight

By JACK CONWAY.

The trial bouts in the national amateur boxing championship tourney will take place in Mechanics Building tonight. One hundred of the leading amateur boxers in the East and South will be seen in action before the evening's festivities come to a close.

Bouts will be held in seven classes, namely, 105, 115, 125, 135, 145, 158 and heavyweight class. The most entries have been received in the 105, 115 and 125-pound classes. The little fellows usually make the best showings at amateur tourneys. They are better boxers than the larger boys and are always willing to mix things at close quarters.

Two national champions will be seen in action. They are Tommy Reagan of East Boston, who holds the title in the 115-pound division, and Napoleon Bouteiller of this city, who is the 158-pound champion. Bouteiller will battle for the premier laurels in the heavyweight class this year and he has got a "punch" that he will be returned the victor.

Southern Champion to Meet Jimmy Lynch

George Pritchard of Forest Hills and Jack Noonan of Dorchester are the only boys who appear capable of giving Reagan a battle, but the Neddie Islander appears to be a little too fast for either of these boys.

Pritchard says that he has discovered a way to defeat Reagan, but we will have to be shown.

The mitting is sure to be fast and furious in the 105-pound division. Jimmy Lynch, New England champion, is the best local boy entered in this class and he should make a great bid for the high honors.

Patsey Green of Cambridge and Barney Ryder of Roxbury are also entered and both youngsters are out to take a fall out of Lynch.

A. Simmons of New Orleans is also going to box in the 105-pound division. Simmons is the champion of the South and has made a swell record in the ring during the past two years. He is a good boxer and can hit hard. Simmons, however, will not have an easy time winning from Lynch.

It looks as though McDonald and Cooper would battle for the championship in the 125-pound class. Cooper was victorious at the New England championships and is confident that he will repeat his victory in the nationals.

Cooper isn't a good boxer and doesn't know a great deal about footwork, but he is blessed with a terrific wallop and when he lands his opponent usually hits the canvas with a loud thud.

Several Dark Horses In List of Entrants

Al Wambsgans of New Orleans is out for the championship in the 135-pound class. Al is rated as the real thing in the fight line and has the distinction of being the champion 135-pounder of the South.

If Wambsgans thinks that he is going to romp off with the honors in his class, he is due to get a rude awakening. Michael Sullivan, a sturdy little East Boston boy, says that he is going to play an important role and incidentally win the title.

Some good men are entered in the 145-pound class. The favorites are Charles Askins, New England champion; John Fitzhenry of New York, William Widdecombe of Maine, T. Henry of New York and George Gable of St. John, N. B.

The best boys in the 158-pound class are Arthur Sheridan, New York, F. C. Belcher, New Orleans and B. A. Lavelle of Cambridge.

Emery Payne, Napoleon Bouteiller, Joe Burke, John Birmingham, John Silverio and George L. Short are the best entrants in the "white hope" class.

Many "green" boys are entered and there is a possibility that some of them will defeat one of the favorites. The finals will be pulled off tomorrow night.

Walsh in Fine Shape for Battle With Coster.

Jimmy Walsh has completed his training stunts in preparation for his bout with Joe Coster, which is scheduled to take place over in New York on Wednesday night. Walsh is confident that he will be returned the winner.

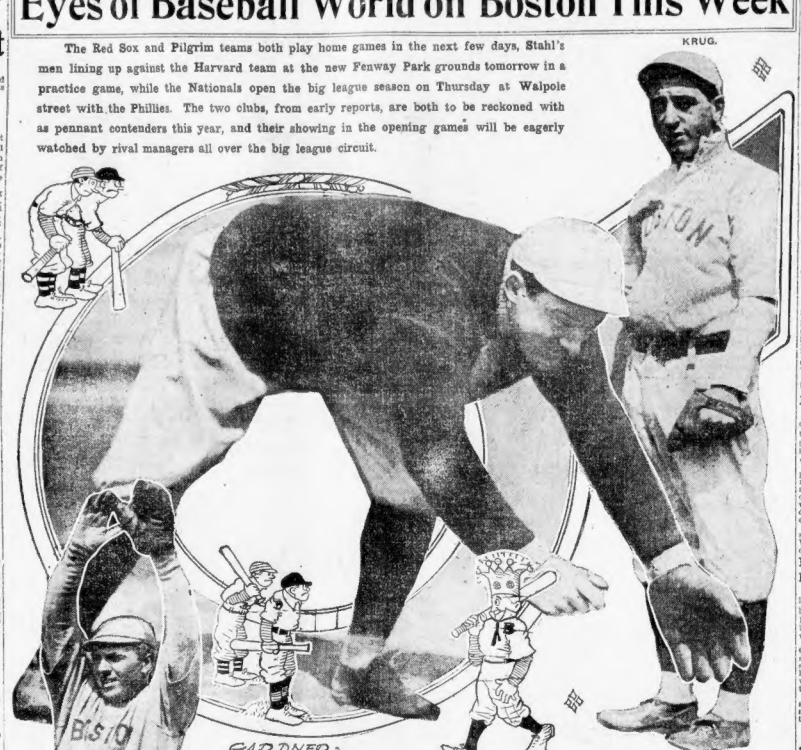
The men will weigh in at 123 pounds. Walsh can make as low as 118 if necessary and will not experience any difficulty in making weight. Coster is a regular featherweight and is sure to give "Jeems" a great tussle for supremacy.

Star Card Arranged for Central A. C. Meeting

The card at the Central A. C. this week looks like the real thing. The bout between Johnny Connolly and Young Donohue should be a stirring affair from beginning to end. Terry Brooks and Joe Farren should put up a slashing contest. Both men are wicked hitters and glory in roughing it. Eldridge is a sensational performer and Millikin will have to be at his best if he is to stay the limit. The bout between Cox and Scanlon is also likely to be fast and interesting.

Eyes of Baseball World on Boston This Week

The Red Sox and Pilgrim teams both play home games in the next few days, Stahl's men lining up against the Harvard team at the new Fenway Park grounds tomorrow in a practice game, while the Nationals open the big league season on Thursday at Walpole street with the Phillies. The two clubs, from early reports, are both to be reckoned with as pennant contenders this year, and their showing in the opening games will be eagerly watched by rival managers all over the big league circuit.



Three of the Red Sox who will play in the game against Harvard tomorrow.

SPEEDY HORSES OFF FOR RUSSIA

NEW YORK, April 8.—Uhlan, 1:58¾, and The Harvester, 2:01, respectively the fastest trotter and the fastest trotting stallion in the world, will be due to arrive here this week from Memphis, Tenn., preparatory to going abroad on April 16 on board the steamship Blucher of the Hamburg American line.

C. K. G. Billings, who recently paid $60,000 for the champion stallion, intends to ship seven other horses to Europe. Among them will probably be Cresceus Mitchell, 2:04¾, the best free-for-all trotter of 1911; Lewis Forrest, 2:06¼; Charley Mac, 2:07¾; Nancy, 2:08¼; Miss Billings, 2:08¾; and a gray Arab stallion that Mr. Billings rides in Central Park.

The horses will first go to Hamburg, Germany, where they are to be rested a week or two and perhaps exhibited before making the long trip to the interior of Russia, their ultimate destination. The principal Summer trotting track in the land of the Czar is at Moscow, and there Uhlan, The Harvester and the rest are to give their important exhibitions of speed. They should arrive in Moscow about the middle of May. With good luck they will be ready to step foot by the Fourth of July, and a month later they may be on their way back to dear America, arriving here in time and in trim to do some record-breaking on Grand Circuit tracks before the season ends at Lexington in October.

Mr. Billings, who has done many big things in the line of trotting horses, which is taking his chambois over at the invitation of breeders and turfmen in Russia who are eager to see Uhlan and The Harvester. He will probably be the guest of the trip, accepting nothing from the Imperial Trotting Club in return for the exhibitions, which doubtless will draw many thousands of dollars at the gates.

The importance of the expedition to American breeding interests cannot well be overestimated. Russian horses of speed have been on the point of barring all Yankee trotters in their races as a matter of protection to their own Orioff breed, but it is believed that two such fine specimens as The Harvester and Uhlan will make them hesitate a long time before they exclude the Americans.

STARS OF TURF TO RACE HERE

A. J. Welch has given out the list of entries for the early closing stakes for the Grand Circuit meeting at Readville in August. It shows a total of 190 horses as against the seventy-six entries made in practically the same classes a year ago.

The big stake is the $10,000 American Trotting Derby, which has attracted no less than forty-one horses, from Billy Burke, 2:03¾, down to a number of trotters, yet unmarked.

The race this year will be upon an entirely new system, consisting of five trial heats of one-mile dashes and then a final, open to those winning money in the trial heats.

The latter will be at a mile and a half from a standing start.

Seventeen tried and true pacers, most of which have records of 2:05 or better, are in the free-for-all pace, while both of the colt stakes, for two and three-year-olds, respectively, have received tremendous entries.

The classic Massachusetts for 2:14 class trotters and the Blue Hill stake in which amateurs must drive, are both nomination events in which the horses do not have to be named until a subsequent payment.

GANZEL GETS BACK TWO PENNANT STARS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 8.—Word comes from Manager Ganzel, in Atlanta, that Outfielder Osborn, now with the New York Americans; First Baseman Spencer, with Washington, and Pitcher Martin of the New York Americans, will wear Rochester uniforms this year. Osborn and Spencer were members of the team which won the last Eastern League pennant—Rochester's third successive flag. Paul Dietz, infielder, has been sold to Syracuse, New York State League, and Ted Anderson, infielder, will go to Erie, Pa. Catcher Graham, who was to have gone because he is suspended for infraction of training rules.

Harvard Is Confident of Defeating Cornell

The training table for the varsity crews at Harvard started this morning with breakfast. Ten men will be taken out. They are Balch, Chanler, Eager, Goodale, Metcalf, E. Morgan, Newton, Q. Reynolds, Stratton and Captain Strong.

George Von L. Meyer, son of the Secretary of the Navy, who was injured in a coasting accident while spending his Christmas holidays at Hamilton, has informed Coach Wray that his fractured ankle is entirely knitted and he has reported for work.

Coach Jim Wray is at optimistic over the chances of his oarsmen this season as he has ever been. The eight will probably be some lighter than last Spring. Wray figures on trailing the Cornell colors in the river next month, in addition to beating out Princeton, the other carry in the near-two-mile race on the Charles. With the new style it is figured that fifteen seconds can be cut off from each mile.

SKEETS HOLD CHAMPS IN SCORELESS GAME

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Philadelphia American world's champions and Jersey City Internationals played five scoreless and errorless innings of baseball at Jersey City and then gave up the game on account of rain. Salmon and Gipe, new pitchers for the Athletics, held Jersey City to two hits. Philadelphia made four hits off McHale.

Americans Play Opening Games With McGraw's Giants in New York.

By RILEY.

THIS is the week of the big show.

Doors open at 3 p. m. next Thursday.

One Boston company, the new Pilgrims, is in New York getting ready to descend on the old town, and we'll see 'em all Wednesday morning.

The other, the old Red Sox, we don't see till late next week—that is, they won't perform here in a big league game until the Pilgrims finish six afternoon engagements—three with the Phillies and three with the Giants.

They play the Harvard boys tomorrow and they'll be over next week for a long session at Fenway Park. Then we'll have a chance to look them over.

In the meantime they will pastime in the uttermost suburb of Boston—New York—where they are knocking at the door waiting for a chance to get into the only real baseball town.

How Teams Compare This Year.

Which ever way the cat jumps the real headliner of baseball of all the American cities—little old Boston—will see some good sport this season.

It will be a much pleasanter place to live than it was last year. It looks like two days of games are over.

Both Boston teams are improved in every department of baseball, particularly in the most important department, pitching staff.

Look for the Red Sox to be fighting it out with the Athletics this year. And the Pilgrims should be fighting it out with all of them, all of the time.

The Sox came home with the same old outfield, which is sufficient, with baseball batting and gloves at the top. The infield is entirely different. The Sox had no infield—no organized quartet during most of last season.

This year they have four men who know the game and are in shape to play it. The weakest spot appears to be at second base. Hooper played brilliantly at times last year. He needed finish. Maybe he has acquired that by experience.

Pilgrims 100 Per Cent. Better.

The Sox need no better backstop than Bill Carrigan to win a pennant. He needs no better substitute than Nunamaker, when Nunamaker is seasoned.

Stahl needs no better pitchers than he has. If they work up to their ability they are altogether as good a bunch as any in the American League. Its up to McAleer and Stahl to keep them up to standard by nice selection and clever management.

The Pilgrims come home fully 100 per cent. better than the Rustlers of last Spring. In the rough, they are the most capable bunch the Walpole Street Grounds have seen in a long time. They are in better hands than they used to be. Ward and Kling know baseball.

The National outfield is as good as any in the National League when in condition. They will be in condition before long. Jackson's hitting has fallen off but his fielding and base running have improved.

Shows Great Improvement.

Campbell looks head and shoulders above any outfielder on the old league. He is a cannon ball on the bases, can cover the most of three fields at once and is a "big stick" who knows how to use the bat with judgment.

"Doc" Miller is the same old "Doc" who can hit almost at will and is cocksure in the outfield. "Doc" is a bit slower than usual just now, but all the outfield weakness is due to lack of gilt-edged condition. A few days ought to bring the trio around.

The infield is better in all respects than last year's, but will work on the field side of the pitchers' box in much better trim than that department was at the opening of last season and Betty Riley added, the catching department is satisfactory.

With Kling plotting them the men have been learning "inside ball" to better advantage and the team has played together better than last year.

Grays Anxious To Square Brown Defeat

PROVIDENCE, April 8.—The Brown University and Providence nines are to have it out all over again. The victory of the collegians in the first game with the Grays, 3 to 2, did not sit well on the minds of the owners and management of the Providence Southern-trained club, and another game is scheduled for tomorrow.

The Providence regulars, with Chick Latham, will open the battle, while Brown will again take the fight with Pitcher Warner.

The Providence club management held a council of war and the riot act is threatened from Van Dusen if Brown wins again.

AMESBURY TO OPEN SEASON ON HOLIDAY

AMESBURY, April 8.—Amesbury High school will open its season April 19, but as yet has not filled the date. The remainder of the season's schedule has been practically made out. Sub-master Swan will be in charge of the team and it is expected that it will be the best one for the past half-dozen years. The schedule of games so far as completed is as follows:

April 20, Lawrence High at Amesbury; April 24, Haverhill High at Haverhill; April 27, Sanborn Seminary at Amesbury; May 4, Pinkerton Academy at Amesbury; May 8, Dummer Academy at South Byfield; May 11, N. H. College Prep. track meet; May 15, Braintree High at Amesbury; May 18, open; May 22, Dummer Academy at Amesbury; May 25, Newburyport High at Newburyport; May 30, Haverhill High at Amesbury; June 1, Amesbury Town at Amesbury; June 5, Lawrence High at Amesbury; June 8, Ipswich High at Amesbury; June 12, Newburyport High at Amesbury; June 15, Danvers High at Danvers.

TO PLUNGE 1,000 FEET OFF PLANE

What experts consider the most perilous feat ever attempted in an aeroplane will be tried Saturday afternoon at Marblehead. J. Rotham Law of Newark will try a parachute drop into Marblehead harbor from a hydroaeroplane speeding fifty miles an hour 1,000 feet above the sea.

His own life and that of the aviator will be risked in the interests of science. With the development of the aeroplane for war purposes it has been wondered whether it will be possible to drop a man from the air into an enemy's camp for spying purposes or to plant mines. Law's feat will be the first New England experiment along that line.

Law will be on a board placed across the ends of the skids at the rear of the machine. There will be other boards across the ends of the skids in front of him, and the aviator will be strapped his parachute by a piece of twine. When the hydroplane reaches the altitude that the stated height has been reached and he signals to his passenger, Law will dive toward the water.

The hydro-aeroplane's getaway will be made from the harbor off the Burgess-Curtis plant, and that company will furnish the machine for the experiment. Considerable difficulty has been found in securing an aviator, several noted ones having refused.

HIGHLANDERS BEATEN.

COLUMBUS, O., April 8. — Columbus won from the New York Americans, 5 to 4, in ten innings. McQuillan was strong with the runners.

New Outlaw League Opens Season May 1

NEW YORK, April 8.—President William A. Whitman of the United States League has issued the playing schedule of his organization for the coming season. The teams on the circuit are New York, Washington, Reading and Richmond in the East, and Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago in the West.

The season is to open May 1 and close September 28. The New York club is scheduled to open its home season with the Reading team on May 1, to be followed by games with Richmond and Washington, etc. Robertson has as yet been given out regarding the location of the grounds of the New York club or who will be the team's manager.

PHILLIES BEAT NEWARK.

NEWARK, N. J., April 8.—The Philadelphia National League baseball club defeated the Newark Internationals here, 3 to 0. The game was called in Newark's half of the seventh inning on account of rain.

TITLE MATCH ON ROXBURY ALLEYS

Sixteen men will take the ball in the semi-final round of the Roxbury Crossing Alleys tournament tonight. Tomorrow night the other sixteen will come to bat for the elimination round will bowl their strings.

The bowlers with the four highest totals out of these thirty will meet in the final round on Thursday, and the man who has the highest total pinfall will be hailed as the champion of Roxbury.

The "fans" of the Highland district are keyed to the highest pitch for the semi-finals tonight and tomorrow night, and Manager McFarland is sure to have his troubles in handling the large crowd.

Following are the men who will roll tonight: Bart Bowen, Dr. Bruce, J. F. Fitzgerald, Harry Coutz, J. Jackson, William Woods, J. J. Sullivan, Frank O'Brien, Alock Wilson, John Wyatt, Daniel Riley, Patrick Conday, J. Sheen, James Hogan, Peter Connelly and J. McGrail.

City League Season Fast Nearing the End.

The City League season is nearing its end. On Wednesday evening the eight teams will roll their second last match of the season. Much interest is being taken in the fight between Carruth and Murray & Irwin for first position.

At present Carruth has a lead of one point, but this is by no means a safe margin, as the Chauncy team which it meets in this week's match is a dangerous opponent. Then again, Murray & Irwin will have no cinch in beating Hayward, despite the fact that the latter is the tailender.

Hayward gave Carruth an unexpected surprise a few weeks ago, and may cause Weller Kirk's boys some trouble Wednesday night.

Rival Rollers Meet In Big Match This Week.

"Judge" Hartford, of Old Colony fame, is all smiles these days. It is not that he proved to be a bowling "comeback," but he is just thinking of the easy time that his kid bowler "Bill" is going to have with Neil Currie of Dorchester, this week.

The Old Colony star and the "Bricklayer Champion" are down to meet in a twenty-string match this week. The first ten strings will be rolled at the Boylston alleys tomorrow night and the final ten will be decided at the Old Colony alleys the following night.

Those who have seen Currie perform say that he is built on the endurance lines and is sure to give Hartford a stiff battle.

Johnson Sees Hot Fight for 1912 Flag

CHICAGO, April 8. — Interest in the 1912 pennant race in the American League is the keenest in the history of the league, according to President Ban B. Johnson.

"The American League," said President Johnson, "has made excellent provisions for its patrons in the construction of seven modern and splendidly equipped baseball plants.

"There is more interest in the race this year than ever before. Boston, New York, Chicago and Cleveland have strengthened their teams to a marked degree.

"Philadelphia with its well seasoned club under the guidance of Connie Mack should be a powerful factor, and Detroit also should prove to be strong. I expect much of New York, Chicago, Boston and Washington with new men as managers of the teams."

Lynch Predicts Best Season in History

NEW YORK, April 8.—President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League is very optimistic about the coming season.

"I look for the best season the National League has ever enjoyed," he said. "With so many of the clubs strengthened it should be a hot race. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburg are sure to have strong competition among themselves, and this season Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Boston and St. Louis look much stronger than last year.

"And the more teams that figure strongly in the race the better the season will be."

ROBERTSON TO AID OLYMPIC ATHLETES

NEW YORK, April 8.—Lawson Robertson, the expert coach and trainer of the Irish American A. C. athletes, will shortly be selected to act as assistant coach of the American Olympic team. This information leaked out yesterday from an authentic source and Robertson's official appointment is looked for daily. Robertson will assist Mike Murphy in coaching the athletes and as he performs enough to earn a place on the American Olympic roster. Robertson is qualified to serve as trainer and coach, for, next to Mike Murphy, the Irish-American athlete is regarded as the best coach in the country.

PIRATES WIN OUT.

KANSAS CITY, April 8.—The Kansas City baseball club of the New York club is beaten 7 to 4, by the Pittsburg Nationals, in an exciting game.

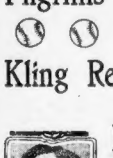
Pilgrims on Last Lap of Trip

Kling Ready to Tackle Phillies

By L. R. MURDOCK.



J. MURDOCK

NEW YORK, April 8.—With a final wallop at Jersey City today and Princeton tomorrow, the Pilgrims wind up their Spring training season this week. They are near the end of their long journey home from Georgia. A rain storm this morning threatened to prevent today's exhibition. If the Princeton game is played, the Ward-Kling big show will arrive in Boston Wednesday morning, if not Tuesday night. In either case the tents will be spread at Walpole street Wednesday and the next day they're off.

CY YOUNG HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

The main training squad was quartered at the Hotel Somerset early today after some mild excitement yesterday. A game was scheduled with the Orioles at Hack River Park, eight miles from Baltimore, on Easter Sunday afternoon.

A crowd of several thousand was expected. On the way out the first accident happened. One of the taxicabs went over a Maryland bump and Cy Young's head struck the top with such a bang that the cover of the cab and Cy's head were both split.

The grand old man had a savage looking jagged wound in his forehead. Jimmy Neary, the medicine man of the squad, bandaged it as well as he could and later a surgeon treated the wound. He advised that it be sewed up, but the operation was postponed at Cy's request because he expected to pitch the baseball game.

Rain prevented this heroic sacrifice, however. When the shadows made baseball impossible, President Ward saw a chance to get into New York earlier and he ordered the whole party to make a quick jump for the Pennsylvania station.

Kling and Party In Auto Upset

Seven taxis full of baseball players raced for Baltimore, one of them, containing Johnny Kling, "Hickory" Jackson, George Tyler and Harry Gowdy, skidded on a hill and turned over, throwing out the party. Luckily, nobody was hurt. They missed the train but everybody was on hand for the next one.

Kling then looked much more fit today than they did a week ago, but some of them are still ailing. Campbell is able to play, but he looks pale and out of the splendid condition he had reached. Ellis is fighting the end of an attack of bronchitis.

"Doc" Miller was a bit under the weather, and two or three others were not very lively as they took the bus at the stage of the game. But three days at home ought to get them all in shape again.

The remarkably classy exhibition they gave at Baltimore showed that Kling has a bunch of ball tossers worth while right now and that they ought to be ready for a speedy getaway in form next Thursday, when they tackle the Phillies at the Walpole street grounds.

The Pilgrim players are confident that they will have a good break in the opening games favorably at a meeting of the association held at the Hotel Astor. Representatives from the six minor leagues constituting the league were present, and the vote to add the Milne following to its ranks was unanimous. In the schedule made up for next year the New Brunswick team will appear with the usual quota and arranged and will compete in the interscholastic championships held annually at the Hotel Astor. Officers for the ensuing season were elected and C. B. McIlvaine of Pennsylvania was chosen as president, to succeed E. G. Pastius of Wilkes-Barre. J. O'Connor of Cornell was made vice-president and J. A. Dorst of West Point secretary and treasurer.

Star Runners Out For Honors in Race Of New Pilgrim A.A.

Local runners are showing keen interest in the ten-mile open amateur handicap cross country run of the Pilgrim Athletic Association which is to be held next Saturday afternoon.

The race will start and finish in front of the quarters of the association in the Arena building on St. Botolph street. Among the entries received yesterday were those of Israel Rakind of the New Dorchester A. A. and Hugh Maguire of North Attleboro.

The race will start at 2:45. Close to a hundred entries are expected as the race will probably be the last real tryout for the men who are to compete in the B. A. A. classic the following Friday, six prizes including one for the best time, will be awarded.

At the down town offices of the Pilgrim A. A. in the Old South building entries are being received for the amateur bouts which are to be one of the features of the opening of the new association in the Arena building on Tuesday night, April 16.

The classic in this tournament will include 105, 115, 125 and 135 pounds and will be conducted under the sanction and by officials of the New England A. A. A. U.

Only bonafide members of the Pilgrim A. A. and of clubs affiliated with the N. E. A. A. U. will be allowed to attend.

BOWDOIN ADMITTED TO FENCING ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, April 8.—The application of Bowdoin College for admission to the Intercollegiate Fencing League was passed upon favorably at a meeting of the association held at the Hotel Astor. Representatives from the six institutions constituting the league were present, and the vote to add the Maine following to its ranks was unanimous. In the schedule made up for next year the New Brunswick team will appear with the usual quota and arranged and will compete in the intercollegiate championships held annually at the Hotel Astor. Officers for the ensuing season were elected and C. B. McIlvaine of Pennsylvania was chosen as president, to succeed E. G. Pastius of Wilkes-Barre. J. O'Connor of Cornell was made vice-president and J. A. Dorst of West Point secretary and treasurer.

Tyler the Favorite For Opening Game

Kling is grooming George Tyler, the southpaw, who looks much better than he was last year, to pitch the opening game. He favors a left-hander for this exhibition and Tyler is his best port-side flinger just now.

The Pilgrims expect to see Al Bridwell in Boston tomorrow or Wednesday and he has telegraphed to Kling that he will be on hand to warm up with the bunch. The manager does not know yet how near Bridwell is to playing form.

He is eager for the Ohio shortstop to get into the game, as that position has caused more anxiety than any other, although Hank Spratt performed in Hugh Wagner style on his first appearance Saturday.

THREE STRAGHT FOR CUBS.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 8.—The Chicago Nationals easily made it three straight in the exhibition series with the Indianapolis Association team. The score was 8 to 5. In four times up, Evers got three singles, and a triple. The batteries were: Chicago, Northrop and Archer; Goulait, Mora and Hill and Pearce.

TIGERS IN TEN INNING TIE.

TOLEDO, O., April 8.—The Detroit American League team and the Toledo American Association team went through ten frigid innings to a 2 to 2 tie. The batteries comprised Perrell, Lathrop and Kocher, Enslaw; Higginbotham and Carlisle, Land.

EASY WIN FOR WHITE SOX.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 8.—The Chicago American League regulars with Walsh and Lange pitching defeated the local Western League club. The score was 4 to 0. Chicago got eleven hits and St. Joseph five.

PICKED UP IN THE RED SOX PULLMAN

ON the way back a number of the players were greeted by friends at their homes, Captain Engle, of the Yanndgans, was in the dumps because the automobile could not stop longer than a half minute in Dayton.

AT St. Bernards, Jack Bushelman pointed out a water tower which stands on the roof, before he might be first saw the light of day.

* * *

AT Norwood, Larry Pape said he could see the big oak under which he used to play marbles when a kid.

* * *

UP in Cleveland, Mart Krug picked out a house in the darkness which he said was his home, and he thought it would be easy to pop one from the train through the window of his hall room.

* * *

IN Buffalo, Hugh Bedient said he just couldn't point out his domicile, but reckoned it was somewhere out in the city. But interested Fred, the Buffalo Jamaica Plain Cubs, amateur champions of the city, that Bedient lives on Bedford street, Jamaica Plain, throughout the state. The team is composed of the same lineup as last year and is anxious to get down to work. It will be ready for April 19. Manager William T. Lipsitch, 1129 Tremont street, Jamaica Plain.

The Paco B. B. Club of Boston would like to hear from fast amateur and semi-professional teams away from home, giving full expenses or small guarantee. The team this year will be greatly strengthened by the appearance of White and Ward, former Boston College players. Address C. H. White, No. 511 Atlantic avenue, city.

The Lowell A. A. of Lowell desires to book games with the fastest amateur teams in the State, at or away from home. Holiday dates still open. Rivermen of Waltham, Lincolns of Lowell and Eastern A. A. of Lynn preferred. Manager John J. Sullivan, Lowell Hosiery, Lowell.

The Crescent A. A. of Roxbury has reorganized for this season and would like to hear from any of the fastest eighteen-nineteen-year-old teams in the vicinity. Address all letters to Manager Morrissey and Holidays, Manager Joseph Flinn, No. 78 Harrison street, Roxbury.

New England Stars Who May Represent U. S. at Stockholm

WM. A. BARRON

THE AMERICAN will print from day to day a series of articles telling what New England athletes stand a chance of being aboard the steamer Finland when the vessel leaves its moorings in New York harbor in June bearing the athletes who will wear the Stars and Stripes in the Olympic games at Sweden. This is the tenth of the series of articles. There are some thirty New England stars who stand a chance of being sent to the game. By following the series the readers will know the history of each runner who will attempt to bring back athletic laurels to this country.

WILLIAM ANDROS BARRON, JR., is rapidly developing into a wonderful quarter miler, and many expect that he will win a place on the Olympic team. Barron is a sophomore at Harvard, and is working out with the harvard track team.

Barron hails from Newburyport, where he was born nineteen years ago. He attended the grammar school of that town, and prepared for Harvard at the Middlesex school of Concord.

Last Spring he was elected captain of the freshman track team, and although he was a green man at the game he went out in his speed togs and performed in good shape.

He took second place in the 100-yard dash in the dual meet against Yale, McClintock winning the event in ten seconds, a new freshman record. He also won second place in the quarter mile event to Stewart of Yale in fifty seconds.

This past indoor season he was a member of the varsity relay team against Yale and at the B. A. A. games last February at Mechanics Building he ran in excellent form.

It is expected that he will stick to the quarter mile event this Spring. Coach Quinn believes that young Barron can cover the distance in forty-nine seconds and run with the leaders. He is doing light work to keep in condition, and he has many followers at Harvard who believe that he will develop into the best quarter miler ever at Harvard.

Bennett A. A. After Fast Semi-Pro Nines

The Bennett A. A., the oldest athletic organization in Somerville, will put a baseball team on the field this season which is ready to meet the fastest teams in New England and the provinces.

Knox of Somerville High and Fitzgerald of Stoughton will do the catching this season. The pitching will be done by "Syrie" Leroy, the former Syracuse High (N. Y.) star. Leroy made an enviable record while in high school, having beaten many college teams.

The infield will be composed of "Trick" Haley at first base, Frank Holland at second base, Johnny Sarsfield at shortstop and Mart Cunningham at third base. Outfielders, Plymouth Cordage and also fast teams in the provinces, Manager Frank Hutchins, No. 162 Glen street, Somerville.

RAIN HOLDS UP GAME.

PATERSON, N. J., April 8.—The game between the New York Nationals and local professionals was postponed on account of rain.

Happy All-Stars in the Field Again, Out To Meet All Comers

The speedy amateur and semi-professional baseball teams of New England had better look to their laurels as the Happy All-Stars are now in the field and are out with a challenge to meet any team in New England. The Happy All-Stars are made up of high schools and semi-professional stars, and, believe us, the members of this team can play some.

Happy, of course, will be manager. It is almost needless to say that Happy is the kind of the Boston newsboys and a thirty-third degree baseball "fan."

The Happy All-Stars will have some rattling good men in the lineup. Included in the squad will be Fred Brannon, the sturdy pitcher of English High; Joe Flynn, the former Romar second sacker; "Sunny Jim" Kennedy of the High School of Commerce who is all interscholastic first baseman; Dave Klein, formerly of English High; George Sholtzner, former third baseman of the High School of Commerce; Jesseau, catcher of the High School of Commerce; Johnny O'Day, former English High school shortstop; Wrinan, formerly with the Roxbury Athletics and little Johnny Archdeacon, who won fame as a member of the Dorchester High School championship team of 1910.

Happy is offering fair guarantee dealing games with this bunch of speed and will be glad to hear from Smith with Happy, care of Boston American, Sporting Department.

BIG ENTRY LIST IN LAWRENCE TOURNEY

LAWRENCE, April 8.—The National duck and candlepin congress will open its annual tournament here today with the largest list of entries of any bowling tournament ever held in New England. Men from all parts of the country will compete in the tourney. Prizes of more than $1,000 in cash will be awarded during the ten days run of the tournament. Lawrence and Haverhill bowlers will start the contest under way.

MORE MEN SIGNED UP BY NEW LEAGUE

The following contracts have been announced by the Greater Boston Baseball League: Fred H. Sullivan, Bedford, third baseman; Joseph D. Nordeau, Somersworth, N. H., catcher; John A. Needham, Brighton, infielder; Thomas Durgin, Lynn, outfielder; John J. Flynn, Medford, catcher and outfielder; R. A. Pitchford, Amesbury, pitcher and outfielder; Edward Brown, Dorchester, second baseman.

Diamond Gossip

Ty Cobb is worrying about the new ball park in Detroit. Ty says he does not know, but he is wondering what difference the ball park will make. It will not make in his batting average. Ty would certainly lead the world in getting hits where that diamond was formerly located, but it has been rebuilt, and that is what causes Tyrus to worry.

* * *

Lefty George and Frank Baker, the Athletic home run hitter, will be friends again this season. They fell out last season because Baker thought Lefty tried to hit him on the head in a game in Philadelphia.

* * *

Jack Glasscock, the old National Leaguer, has become an assistant to Billy Sunday at the latter's revival meetings.

* * *

Connie Mack has been sadly disappointed in the work of his crop of outfielders. He had several recruits, but all got fired a Baker or a Barry got on a Collins and ran them. However, he has kept one unfortunate, who is only Eddie Plank's size, but who has the earmarks of a comer in the big league.

* * *

The training trip of the Philadelphia Athletics will cost that club $18,000. That's one reason why some major league clubs paid in salaries to all their players for a whole season less than five years ago.

* * *

Although Manager Jennings declined to say so in as many words, it is practically certain that Pitcher Ed Killian, Infielder Daly, Outfielder and Catcher Joe Casey will be turned loose by the Tigers before the season opens. Killian was pitching phenom or very soon thereafter.

* * *

Bill Dahlen, manager of the Brooklyn Nationals, has a new job in his contracting by Willie Keeler, the assistant manager, to keep him from batting .300 or better. Keeler sacker even than the wonderful Hal Chase of the New York Yankees.

* * *

The Cleveland Naps have seven men hitting about .300. They are: Hamilton, .302; Birmingham, .304; Butcher, .312; Easterly, .333; Gardner, .353; Lajoie, .367; Jackson, .408.

* * *

Frank Schulte of the Cubs has made forty-eight hits in the first thirty-five games since he has been in the National League, and 12 of them have been made against New York pitchers.

* * *

Manager Fred Lake will insist that the Providence Grays of 1912 play ball with their head as well as their arms and legs this year, and has already started to coach his players on the details of "inside baseball," that mysterious element in the game which is so puzzling to the majority of the fans.

Red Sox Come Back Home Tonight

Stahl Well Pleased With Outlook

By H. B. SCHULTZ.

Special American Correspondent with the Red Sox.

HARLETON B. SCHULTZ

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 8.—On a fast train, the Red Sox are speeding homeward today, after an absence of exactly one month. The team left Cincinnati on scheduled time after splitting even on the two games with the Cincinnati red legs. All day traveling today ought to bring the contingent into the South Station at 8:30 tonight. In the party are thirty-three persons, including the twenty-five players, President and Mrs. McAleer, Mrs. Ray Collins, Trainer Quirk, and four newspaper men, and everybody will be glad to hit home soil again.

READY AND ANXIOUS TO OPEN SEASON.

Gossip in the two Pullman coaches occupied by the team is all about home and tomorrow's game with Harvard. In the game with the Crimson, Stahl will see one of his youngsters, Bushelman, Hageman or Bedient.

The players are in fine fettle this morning. Saturday's victory and peppery work in Cincinnati having gingered them up mightily. Jim McAleer thinks his team is the best in the country, and personally, though he isn't promising the Boston fans that, he believes they have a most excellent chance of winning the pennant. He is pleased with the High School of Commerce who is all interscholastic first baseman; Dave Klein, formerly of English High; George Sholtzner, former third baseman of the High School of Commerce; Jesseau, catcher of the High School of Commerce; Johnny O'Day, former English High school shortstop; Wrinan, formerly with the Roxbury Athletics and little Johnny Archdeacon, who won fame as a member of the Dorchester High School championship team of 1910.

Jim McAleer thinks his team is the best in the country, and personally, though he isn't promising the Boston fans that, he believes they have a most excellent chance of winning the pennant. He is pleased with the showing of Ernie Shore, who pitched with the High School of Commerce nine and who looks much better than he was last year, to pitch the opening game. He favors a left-hander for this exhibition and Tyler is his best port-side flinger just now.

The Pilgrims expect to see Al Bridwell in Boston tomorrow or Wednesday and he has telegraphed to Kling that he will be on hand to warm up with the bunch. The manager does not know yet how near Bridwell is to playing form.

He is eager for the Ohio shortstop to get into the game, as that position has caused more anxiety than any other, although Hank Spratt performed in Hugh Wagner style on his first appearance Saturday.

Records Broken In Getting Away

In the seventh innings again looked dangerous for the visitors. Clark singled, Beecher was hit by Hall. Bates was walked, and the bases were full. Hobitzell's grounder to Yerkes forced Clark, who was put out by Curtain, who picked up a difficult throw from second and nailed the Cincinnati first baseman at the plate. The assony ended for the time being.

In the next a double and a triple swelled the Cincinnati total. Grant went out on bunt. Hall fumbled Esmond's grounder and Carrigan's sweet triple to deep center scored two. Benton sacrificed, Stahl to Hall, and Carrigan scored on the out.

Beecher's two-bagger into right but was left standing at second, as Bates flied out to Hooper and the side, retiring the side.

After yesterday's game the team made a quick trip to the hotel, doubled their grips and then to the depot, the train leaving at 6:05 o'clock.

Cicotte and Hall In Points for Boston

Cicotte and Hall rattled for Boston, and while both showed many fine points, both were far from being at their best.

In the third, following a costly error by Krug, Kaniokie pitched wild, passing three men. In the eighth, Hall fell off for two hits, and his fumble of a grounder gifted the Reds three runs for the inning.

Krug subbed at short, Wagner being held out for fear the cold might have a bad effect on his arm. Krug, usually alsperth, seemed over anxious, and his fumble in the third started a spell of poor play, ing which finally presented the Reds with three runs on a silver platter.

Cicotte allowed four hits in his six innings, passing six men and striking out two.

The Red Sox found Suggs for seven hits, but were unable to touch Rube Benton's curves in the last five innings for even a scratch.

Things looked right for the Red Sox on the start. Hooper singled to right, Yerkes forced Hooper at second, and a few moments later was himself caught off the same sack. Speaker singled and then Stahl fanned.

Cicotte struck out Beecher, the first man up. Bates went out, Cicotte to Stahl and Hobitzell singled to centre. Rodie, by dint of keeping his eye turned in Stahl's direction, finally laid Hobitzell low on his swift toss to Jake.

Krug's Fumble Started the Trouble

In the third, Krug's fumble put Mc-

Amateur Baseball Games Wanted

With a strong lineup on the diamond this season, the Mill Mutes's White Bears look to come with the best semi-professional nines in New England. Mostly high school players will be candidates for the team and they expect to make a record. The Enviable Art of Holding All Your Friends

By DOROTHY DIX.

A GIRL who is unusually pretty, unusually intelligent, well educated and of fine social position complained to me the other day that she was lonely; that she had neither friends nor beaux. She said, and truly, that strangers were always attracted to her, but that in a little while they fell away from her; that other girls' cordiality to her was short lived, and that men would call on her once or twice and come no more.

The girl wondered why.

It was because she possessed the gift for inspiring liking, but she does not understand the art of preserving it. She is like a peach that is beautiful and rosy and luscious to look at, but that you find to be bitter when you come to taste it.

The one deal in life where we get absolutely what is coming to us is in the matter of friendship. People are liked and loved in just the ratio that they deserve it; and so I would ask this girl, who bemoans the fact that she has no girl friends, what she does to attach other girls to her?

To be honest, my dear, aren't you a good deal of a cat? Don't you give the other girls a sly clawing when they come around? Don't you say, "Oh, yes, Mamie is such a sweet girl and very pretty, but she gets her complexion at the drug store, and anybody could tell that her hair was peroxided, and as for her being so much admired by men, everybody could have a beaux if they would run after men the way she does?"

And such being the case, is there any particular reason why the Mamies of your acquaintance should yearn for your society?

And aren't you the envious thing? Don't you belittle everything that anybody does that you can't do? Aren't you Sally going to a party that you are not invited to, and she tells you what a gorgeous time she had? Don't you resent it that the people who gave the party are not in society, or that you wouldn't go to a public ball, or something else that takes the gilt off of Sally's gingerbread?

Don't you invariably knock every other girl's clothes, especially if they are better than yours, and do your level best to make her feel cheap and most foolish? And if you do these things, don't you think that the girls could do very well without you?

And don't you rather pride yourself upon speaking the truth to your friends? Don't you feel called upon to tell sadly that her hat is unbecoming, and that she is getting sallow, and flattie that she is getting fat, and Henrietta that her old dress is worn to a frazzle, and that she is the last person who ever comes to list, does she pause when she comes to your name, and say to herself: "Well, I'll like to invite Caroline Amiliora, but if I do she will get into an argument with somebody and I'll have to wade into the troubled waters of conversation, or she will be rude to somebody, or she will bring on topic, by the head or the heel, that will hurt somebody's feelings, and so I'll just leave her out, because it gives me nervous prostration to spend three or four hours keeping the peace between her and my other guests?"

As for your failure to be popular with men, that's your own fault, too. Look yourself squarely in the face, little girl, and see where the trouble lies. Are you one of the sniffy girls who always tries to make a man think that she's a sort of fairy princess and that no matter what he does for her she's condescending to accept it?

If a man takes you to the theatre do you say that you've accustomed to a box seat at the opera? If a man takes you to ride in his runabout do you spend the time discoursing about six-cylinder high-power Frenchers? If a man treats you to a beer-and-sandwich supper do you make things pleasant for him by telling about the champagne and terrapin that some other man set up for you at a Fifth avenue restaurant?

When a man comes to see you do you begrudge the time by being sarcastic and trying to show him how much smarter and wittier you are than he is? If you do why should he come back again? Do you suppose he gets any pleasure out of being made to look small and foolish? Or do you think that being stabbed in your vanity is such a delightful sensation that a man would care to repeat the performance?

When a man calls do you spend the time talking about yourself? Ah, my child, no man on earth was ever enough interested in a woman to be willing to listen to the story of her life or what she thinks she thinks. The one and only subject that fascinates a man is himself, and you need never expect to see a man the second time if you let the conversation stray from this absorbing theme.

It takes work and trouble and self-denial to make one's self popular, but it can be done.

Scratching Is Dangerous.

People afflicted with eczema and other skin troubles try to get relief by scratching, which not only aggravates the trouble, but also increases the risk of infection. Apply a little Cadum, and the itching will stop. Cadum is soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin. It is antiseptic, and when applied to a scratch, sore or wound, prevents infection from disease germs. It acts quickly upon eczema, pimples, sores, ulcers, rash, rough skin, scalp sores, chafings, itching piles, etc. Of druggists, 10c and 25c per box.

FEEL SHAKY, HEADACHY, BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED? TAKE CASCARETS

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous matter, instead of being thrown out, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, awful throbbing, sickening headache.

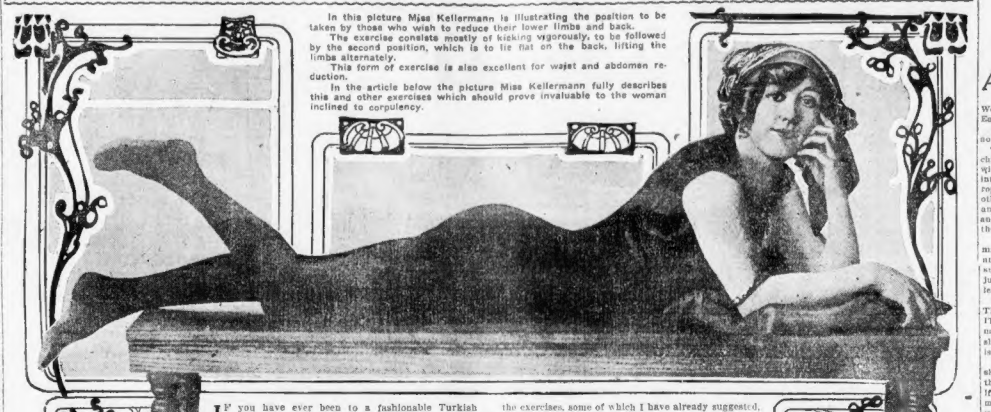
Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, and making the waste move on and out of the bowels. One taken tonight will straighten you out by morning —a 10-cent box means a clear head for months. Don't forget the children.

10 Cents. Never gripe or sicken.

CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

The Right Road to Health — By Annette Kellermann

—Good News for the Stout Woman, and Reducing Secrets—



In this picture Miss Kellermann is illustrating the position to be taken by those who wish to reduce their lower limbs and back.

The exercise consists mostly of kicking vigorously, to be followed by the second position, which is to lie flat on the back, lifting the limbs alternately.

This form of exercise is also excellent for waist and abdomen reduction.

In the article below the picture Miss Kellermann fully describes this and other exercises which should prove invaluable to the woman inclined to corpulency.

IF you have ever been to a fashionable Turkish bath where the wealthy fat lady is catered to you know why she doesn't get thin, no matter how much money she may spend on herself.

This is the ordinary procedure: Enter Fat Lady. "Oh, my dear, I'm sure I've gained at least ten pounds since I was here before! Yes, I know I should exercise more, but how can I? There is so much to do! Now, Lizzie," (this to the patient bath attendant) "I want you to work over me as hard as you can. I shall stay here all the afternoon and I'm sure I can melt off some of this flesh."

Well, she* stays there for hours, perspiring freely and being rubbed and pummelled until you would think there ought to be some reduction in her weight, and probably there would be, too, in time, only after she has been in the bath for two or three hours she emerges with a most enormous appetite and feeling that she should really indulge herself after being so good about taking the hot bath and trying so hard to reduce—she orders a meal that staggers even the waiter who is seasoned to the orders of the Fat Lady.

Then she tells you that nothing helps her, and that all methods of reducing flesh are foolish and useless.

As long as you are going to be self-indulgent about your diet it is quite useless to try to reduce.

The appetite of a very fat person is often unhealthy, quite as unhealthy as their fat. On the other hand, some stout people eat very little. Usually they take a good deal of liquid nourishment or are not inclined to exercise. In some cases there is a constitutional reason for the increased weight and a physician should be consulted.

For the really obese, exercise of any kind is difficult, but for the woman who is just beginning to get stout, dancing, swimming, fencing, tennis, bicycling—all these things are to be recommended as well as regular work in a gymnasium, or housework, with the exercises, some of which I have already suggested, and others mentioned below.

Lie flat on the back on the floor, hands clasped under the head. Lift the left leg to a perpendicular position, toes extended away from the body, stretch the hip and thigh muscles vigorously. Return the leg to the floor, keeping the muscles quite stiff. Raise the right leg and repeat the exercise. After practicing this alternately twelve times, kick the legs vigorously with thigh muscles relaxed.

EXERCISE II.—Stand erect, hands on hips, twist the body at the waist, turning first toward one side, then toward the other. Keep the chest raised and shoulders back while doing this movement.

EXERCISE III.—For reducing the lump at the back of the neck, stand erect, head very high. Lift the shoulders, draw them back as far as possible. Now move them in a circular manner backward, up and forward, putting a great deal of vigor into the motions with the desire to heighten the circulation in that particular and very disfiguring lump on the back. Carry the shoulders back whenever you can remember to do so, even if the position is stiff and awkward. This exercise and the following one will help reduce the size of the bust.

EXERCISE IV.—Stand erect with hands on the chest. Slowly stretch the arms and hands back as far as possible, keeping them on a level with the shoulders. Inhale deeply. Bring the hands back to the first position. During this exercise keep pressing the neck back as if you were pushing against your collar. Repeat many times.

You can't get this in a hurry, because every bit of fat has to be literally burned out of you with the oxygen you breathe, and the exercises are to aid you in this process.

That is why I say: Fat people, get out of doors. It's fresh air pumped into your lungs that is going to consume the carbon or fat which worries you so much.

The better the air the quicker the results.

The Manicure Lady

"I WISH I had had a really new hat for Easter," said the Manicure Lady.

"I was talking to two of the girls that came up to the house the other night. Both of them is schoolmates of mine, and both of them is married to rich gents. It made me kind of blue, George, when I heard them talking about the swell new creations that they was going to have for Easter."

"Never mind, kid," said the Head Barber. "Hats is hats, after all, and the most you can do with hats is to use them one at a time to cover your dome. You ain't got no kick coming. Robinson Crusoe had to go bareheaded when he was on his desert island. All he had was an umbrella, and there wasn't no class to that."

"I remember reading about that," said the Manicure Lady as she brightened up perceptibly. "He didn't have no lid, did he?"

"Not a lid, whatever," said the Head Barber. "He just blew around the island with some kind of grass thatch and his Man Friday. I suppose he thought that was enough."

"I wouldn't think it was enough, goodness knows," said the Manicure Lady, "but I must say, George, that you do a heap to make a girl feel cheerful. Until you and I had spoke this morning I felt as if I was the most poverty-struck girl in the league. Now, after having spoke with you, I can look over at that hat rack and believe that my hat is good enough to have been worn by the Queen of Bethsheba, or whatever her name was. George, when it comes to being a comforter, you are a regular quilt."

"That's the first time that I was ever called a quilt," said the Head Barber, dubiously. "I have been called a lot of different things in my time, but never a quilt. I guess, though, that you don't mean anything antigenous. But getting back to the subject of the Easter hat, you mustn't worry. You are all the time talking about the poetry that your brother Wilfred writes —how about this thing I wrote last night? Just dashed it off—listen:

"The room was small and bare and bleak;
It cost her a dollar every week.
The girl was little and was and worn
With one cheap gown that was patched and torn.

You frazzled hat with its faded red
She pinned with a sob on her troubled head.
Then the Easter sun caressed her hair
And painted a plume and a halo there.'

"Ain't that beautiful?" exclaimed the Manicure Lady. "You don't mean to tell me, George, that you ever wrote anything like that?"

"Sure I wrote it," asserted the Head Barber. "You don't think I would steal nothing, do you? Just because it is a little classier than anything your brother Wilfred wrote ain't any sign that I didn't do it. That goes. I wrote it."

A Bitter Critic

Father (sternly)—Your mother and I agree that you require a sound whipping.

Small Son (sarcastically)—Oh, yes, that's the only thing that you and mother ever do agree about.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THE announcement that equal suffrage has been granted to the women of China caused great joy to Daysey Mayme Jackson.

"It is proof," she said, looking complacently at her high heels, "that having a slow gait does not prevent women from keeping abreast with progress."

Possessed with an analytical brain that does not stop at the surface, she began to make a study of woman conditions, which resulted in such glorious results in China, and stumbled over rice.

"Ah, their diet!" she exclaimed.

The next morning Daysey Mayme, who is in charge of the kitchen during the regular semi-annual visit of her mother to certain rich and childless kin, went to a grocer's and bought a quarter's worth of rice.

"Economical and nutritious," the cook said.

"And it has made Yik Ying Ying, a woman, a member of the Chinese Parliament," added Daysey Mayme.

"I will learn its effects on man," she said, "and make it the basis of a treatise for the next meeting of the Ypres Equal Women Suffrage Club."

She put the rice over to boil in a quart vessel, and was surprised when she entered the kitchen fifteen minutes later to find the vessel empty. She changed it to a gallon kettle, and fifteen minutes later found it had required the need of six bottles.

"Father may relish," mused Daysey Mayme, "but I will think of Yik Ying Ying and be patient and brave."

"I have been serving dinner in six courses," she said to him with her sweetest smile, "Soup, of course; meat, of course, and potatoes, of course. Tonight I have something new. Only one course and that is rice."

Her father said nothing and ate his rice without complaint, being a patient man. The next morning he ate rice again and showed signs of rebellion. Then, when he entered into the kitchen and saw that he had to eat his way through seven more gallons he began to foam at the mouth.

"So clean and nutritious, daddy, dear," Daysey Mayme said, soothingly, when she saw his limbs begin to twitch.

But it was no use. Lysander John was on the floor in a fit, during which he kicked up both heels all over the house and through all the windows, the neighborhood was splintered.

"The American man is unlike his almond-eyed brother," wrote Daysey Mayme in her diary that night, after spending three hours in digging her father out of the Rockwell kitchen and straightening him to his bed, "and different methods will have to be employed in bringing him to a state of subjection."

An Explorer's Wife at Home

How Mrs. Scott Makes the Weary Months of Waiting Seem Shorter

This picture, a scene in the London studio of Mrs. Robert F. Scott, wife of the famous English explorer, would seem to show that she has solved the problem of how to occupy the long, weary days, months and perhaps years of her husband's absence.

To aid her she has the company of her two children, and besides has made herself a sculptor of no mean note.

Mrs. Scott was Kathleen, daughter of the late Canon Lloyd Bruce; they were married in 1908. Two sons have blessed them. Peter, a fine youngster, now two and a half years old, and Edward Burns, into whose baby eyes his father has never looked. His mother had truly moving pictures taken of him and sent them as far as she could toward the good ship Terra Nova, on which his father adventures.

Work to Be Done and How Not to Do It

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

A NEWS item reports the case of a young man who described his daily life as follows:

(1) Get up. (2) Eat breakfast. (3) Work. (4) Eat lunch. (5) Work. (6) Eat supper. (7) Go to bed.

And it was all just one steady, monotonous repetition day after day.

There are some very wonderful machines in the world. They seem to work with almost human precision. Feed hemp into the end of one of them and coiled rope of desired length comes out at the other end. Feed paper into the end of another, and envelopes come out gummed, and put up in packages with a hand pushed them.

Now the interesting thing about such machines is not their wonderful exactness and dependability. If you stand and watch such a machine you will marvel at it for just these qualities, and yet they are the least wonderful things about it.

The real marvel of the machine is this. THERE WAS A DESIGNER BACK OF IT. A man thought it out by using his mind. He put pieces of metal together, shaped as he wanted them. And the hemp is turned into rope.

And the marvelous fact about the designer is not that he made the machine that makes us wonder, but that he can, if he will, make a still more wonderful machine, for the designing, constructive mind knows no limit.

II.

The young man who lives the steady monotonous grind described in the beginning of this article, ignores the whole game. He may, or may not, believe that he is himself the product of a constructive, designing mind. BUT HE MUST NOT FORGET THAT HE HAS A MIND WHICH HE CAN USE FOR DESIGNING AND CONSTRUCTING.

A young man or a young woman who works in forgetfulness of this great truth, is alone in a dark room, instead of being in the company of real workers in a busy world where there is plenty of sunshine.

Begin by letting the mind have its full play with the job you have to do. The old saying about "thing off your own bat," is full of exhortation. It is full of philosophy. The moment we work with an thought given to the great overtones of what the designing mind that is in all of us might discover if it were given a chance.

Many a man who thought about his job has discovered something worth while. He has found a better way of doing, or he has interested something or discovered something no one else knows. Let the designing mind once make even the smallest thing, and it will certainly make a larger and better thing soon after.

III.

It is the spirit of the designing mind that is putting agriculture on a new basis. It is driving a belief in the power of men's minds, and teaching them to depend on Thoughtful Effort.

You read much in the papers these days about the conservation of our natural resources. The constructive power of the mind is the first and foremost of all great resources for us to conserve. Take care of that and the rest will take care of itself.

When a man raises the product of an acre of ground from fifty to two hundred and twenty-five bushels of corn, you can depend upon it that the conservation of the natural resources of the mind received his attention before that of the acre of ground.

When Jones sells Smith a worn out apple orchard that is producing wormy prunes and grafts and fertilizes and sprays until he gets a profitable apple crop, look for conservation of resources under Smith's hat. That is where the designing mind has its office. The profitable apple orchard is just one of the pieces of work that can be done from that office.

Now, if any young man finds life a dreary treadmill, let him change his program. Let him get up, and eat, and work and think, and the first thing he knows he will BE IMPROVING THE TREADMILL. He may even be able to patent a nice, easy-going treadmill. Even that is something.

Never wonder at a great piece of machinery, or at a profitable apple orchard. Wonder at the designing mind that makes them possible, and then wake your own up and put it to chance. The plan for daily program will begin to run like this:

1. Get up. Eat, and be thankful you can get up.
2. Eat breakfast and share your happiness around the table.
3. Work, and think.
4. Eat lunch and be happy.
5. Work, and be happy.
6. Supper (See No. 4.)
7. Go to bed, thankful that you have pushed forward during the day.

Second Ditto—Certainly. But why all this formality of asking permission?

First Bohemian—I don't find it.

TWENTY YEARS OF TERRIBLE ITCHING

Untold Agony, Ashamed to Be Seen, Nothing Helped. Resinol Instantly Relieved and Trouble Passed Away.

Such is the story of Thomas G. Hull, New Haven, Conn. Every sufferer from tormenting skin troubles should profit by his experience, told in his own words:

"For twenty years or more I was troubled with terrible itching of the body, arms and legs. I suffered untold agony; could hardly sleep at night, and was seriously ashamed to be seen. I obtained a small jar of Resinol Ointment, applied same and was instantly relieved. I then purchased a cake of Resinol Soap and used it in connection with the Ointment. The itching soon became less, and in a short time entirely passed away."

As Mr. Hull's letter shows, Resinol Ointment stops itching instantly. Used with Resinol Soap, it is the quickest, easiest and most economical treatment for eczema, rashes, tetter, ringworm, pimples and other skin affections, as well as for burns, scalds, boils, ulcers and chafing, bleeding and inflamed piles. Recommended and sold by your druggist. Soap, 25c. Ointment, 50c. and $1.00. Sample of each sent free. Address Dept. 14, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

WORK FAST, BUSY SEASON
CURSES! THIS CHINAMAN IS FORCING US TO SEW FLAWS FOR THE NEW CHINESE REPUBLIC. I MUST FOIL CLAUDE NEXT TO ME AND STEAL HIS SWEETHEART ROSAMOND, HA, HA
WHILE CLAUDE IS TALKING TO ROSAMOND, I'LL SEW HIS SLEEVE TO THE FLAG AND THEN I'LL GET AWAY WITH HIS GAL. THE GUARD IS ASLEEP
HORRORS! I'M SEWED TIGHT. 'TIS DESMOND'S WORK. HALO COUSIN, AGAIN, ROSAMOND!
YOU CUR
I MUST FOLLOW
NOW TO REST MY WEARY SHOULDERS ON MY WAY DOWN HILL TO VISIT THE UNSUSPECTING DESMOND
ROSAMOND YOUR LOVER IS FAR AWAY
NOW DESMOND, YOU CUR HAVE YOU IN MY POWER. I LOVE ONLY CLAUDE!
CURSES!
ROSAMOND, DO NOT LET THE VILLAIN ESCAPE; I'LL BE BACK SOON
HERSHFIELD

I.—AT THE SEWING MACHINE.
In their need for new flags, the Chinese republicans have pressed into service in the factory Desmond, Claude and Rosamond, whose nimble fingers turn out more work than three Chinese. For the moment, Claude believes that his sweetheart is safe from the villain, who is in the same fix as they are just now. But Desmond always plots.

II.—THE UNSUSPECTING LOVER.
Love is a curious thing. Even in the Chinese flag factory, Claude forgets all about other things while whispering into Rosamond's ear the fool remarks that have been whispered into feminine ears in all the languages of the world. Utterly oblivious to Desmond, Claude falls an easy victim to the villain, who sews his sleeve to the flag.

III.—TRAPPED.
With a hoarse chuckle, Desmond suddenly seizes Rosamond and rushes her out of the factory, while the astonished Claude finds, as he attempts to rush after them in pursuit, that he is bound fast to the sewing machine. As he sits helpless for the moment, Desmond manages to get Rosamond safely out of Claude's reach.

IV.—A HERO'S STRENGTH.
Not yet is the villain safe. Claude, with all the strength of a hero and a lover, picks the heavy sewing machine up on his shoulders and dashes out in pursuit of the scoundrel. With such a weight to carry, however, it seems impossible that he can ever hope to catch the fleeing Desmond. Nevertheless, Claude keeps on.

V.—SHOOTING THE CHUTE.
Down the slope of a hill Claude hears familiar voices. Desmond is telling Rosamond that her lover can never aid her again, and Rosamond is reiterating her faith in Claude. This inspires our hero, and he smilingly does a somersault which makes the sewing machine a toboggan, ponderous indeed, but practicable.

VI.—UPSET.
Claude, shooting down the hill like an avalanche on the heavy sewing machine, bumps heavily into Desmond and turns that surprised villain end over end as the toboggan goes scooting down hill. Quickly Rosamond picks up a stone and threatens the villain with it. She tries to hold Desmond till Claude returns. Full story tomorrow.

A MURMUR of awe and wonder passed around the "table." Luana looked at "Missitter Stranger" with a look that was almost doglike in its adoration. She threw Dean a quick look of deadly resentment.

"Ah, it is nice, friends," she said, with trembling lips. "This stranger has a noble heart—like a King's! See! Around his neck I put a royal lei!"

And she lifted the great wreath of yellow flowers from the mat and hung it around the young man's neck. He laughed, and flushed slightly.

"Dr. Wilson," concluded Mr. Sysonby heavily, as he sat down, "won't you say a word?"

Luana eagerly grasped the young man's arm and motioned to him to rise.

"I like to hear you speak," she declared, as if she already felt in him the interest of a proud proprietress. Wilson smiled, either and rose, with a slight shrug of the shoulders.

"Well, friends, there is nothing to hear say about yet," he said in a modest manner-of-fact way. "Of course, I will go to Molokai, and if I get a chance I will dig into that question. But, really, I wouldn't be here at all if it wasn't for Miss Luana," he lied, with the graceful gallantry of his race, which gives to the womankind all of the credit for everything with which they have been even remotely connected.

"Oh!" exclaimed Luana, resentfully.

"See!" he went on. "I wanted a vacation before I settled down to my practice, and she told me about these beautiful islands. So when she wanted to come here again I went along in the same party to this place—the paradise of the Pacific. I'm beginning to believe she is," he smiled and sat down with a bow.

In the chorus of applause that followed he turned to Luana with a smile. But she girl frowned and drew away from him with a disgruntled "Huh!"

Luana's Jealousy

"Why, what's the matter?" he asked.

"Oh, nothing!" replied Luana, her bosom heaving with sudden jealous anger. "Only maybe you like better to sit there by—lady with grass hair!"

Wilson's laugh at her frank, childish jealousy rang out above the pleasant buzz of the feast.

"Now," he said, and smiled into her eyes, "I'd rather sit right here with you and eat this breakfast food."

"A?" queried Luana, a little doubtfully.

"Aye," he assured her with hearty emphasis. Instantly the girl was all smiles and affection again and insisted on feeding him pot until Mrs. Sysonby decided that it was her turn to contribute to the joy-fulness of the festivities. She touched her lips with her handkerchief, and rose.

"Now, if you must sing," she said, "make it something appropriate—Work for the Night is Coming."

Wilson hastily hung his head to repress the grin he could not help, and a girl flower from the mat and hung it around the young man's neck. He laughed, and flushed slightly.

"Dr. Wilson," concluded Mr. Sysonby heavily, as he sat down, "won't you say a word?"

Luana eagerly grasped the young man's arm and motioned to him to rise.

"Ah, you no eat no now!" she pleaded to Wilson.

"Yes, I—I think so," he replied, and suddenly looked away from her. They had all risen, and Luana hastened over to Mrs. Sysonby and spoke with canny cheerfulness.

"Ah, you will not take our friends away so soon," she said. "Perhaps they like to see the house. You never see a Hawaiian house—hindee? No?" she added, turning to Wilson.

"A grass house? Way, no."

"I would like to see everything," declared Diana. The sunlight was wholly gone now and the widespread complaint of the forest grew louder. "Mrs. Sysonby," went on Diana, pointing up to the roof of the cave, "right above here—just that the old home of Pele, the goddess of the volcanoes—the extinct craters where she lived before the sea made her flee to the high mountains? Beautiful!"

Mrs. Sysonby's thin lips came together in a thinner line.

"Beautiful! Ugly, you mean," she said. "But forget that up there to that same place Pele those people used to make human sacrifices."

"Here?" exclaimed the girl, surprised. "I thought they jumped into the volcano itself."

"Well, whatever it was, it was bad enough," declared Mrs. Sysonby, with finality.

Outside the gloom descended rapidly. The forest grew instinct. The heavy, lowswinging seas were suddenly dark with wrath and the cave was filled with an unhallowed green half light.

"Pele's angry," Luana, muttering out. "The rain comes quickly! You not wish to go away in that."

"Perhaps we can get back before it reaches us," suggested Wilson, with a doubtful glance at the wind-rent, green clouds racing upon them in whirling confusion.

"No. These showers go so quick," they come." Mr. Sysonby, you say know Aa?" cried Luana, eagerly. Mrs. Sysonby followed the girl into the grass house. The darkness of the outer covers, a sense of stillness fell on the trembling world without.

Where Men Lose Out

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"BY women—be they of what extraction they may, rank they may, however gifted with intellect or genius, or endowed with awful beauty—have always some little handiwork ready to fill the gap of every vacant moment."—Hawthorne, in "The Marble Faun."

And that is where the men lose out. A needle is familiar to the fingers of every woman in every station of life, and may a kindly providence build annexes on its wings to protect her if it can't.

It is her safety valve. Perhaps in the hours when compelled to use it too steadily, she wishes she hadn't the knowledge or necessity. But it happens oftener that she uses it with pleasure, profit and comfort, and in plaid.

The woman who can't sew has missed the entrance to the House of Content. With a needle for company she can sew away fretting annoyances, tucks away irritation and binds sore spots out of sight and memory. Milly's Wedding Present

MISS BELINDA had a letter from Farmer John Hoardley, her neighbor over the hill, whose son is living in her former cottage.

"It has seemed real lonesome round your place all Winter, with you and your brother away," he wrote. "Old Wonder didn't make a very good job of covering some of your roses. He's awful shiftless and so is John, I suppose you ought to come down to you go away. He's like his father, who's so lazy and slack he'd rather live at the county house than work. Well, I took some straw down and threw it over them once by the side wall. You can lay me for it when you come back in the Spring unless you'd rather trust it with the boys by telling with olde little and get a little something extra for Milly."

"Of course, you don't have suspicioned how things was going with Milly and my self-in fact, I don't think you have seen it last Summer, but I didn't say a word to hinder. Well, I guess you'll see Milly marries Jake—and she's sure to marry somebody, for girls with fairly good and red cheeks like her find it pretty hard to live single. Matrimony is what they are stay home on the farm, and that's a mighty advantage to me, seeing that she ain't got any mother.

"Well, Milly and Jake's going to be married soon. So, Miss Belinda, I'm sending you $40 to buy a pretty present for Milly. It seems a lot of money to spend all at once on clothes and finery, but Milly's the only girl I've got and I'm going to make her married life fixed up as nice as anybody else's, and I guess you'll be pretty apt to get a good price for my crop this season. In fact, I think I can afford to be liberal.

"I know you can tell better than I can just what she'll need, but there's one thing she must have certain—that's a good black silk to wear to weddings and funerals and family gatherings. So get a good one that will last, if don't like black for Milly very much myself, but I want her to have what's right. I'd like it, too, if you could get her one of them soft, light grey, cloudy dresses like you wore in the Summer. I always admired to see you in that.

"Of course, you'll have to buy white stuff for the wedding dress. I was blushing around last night, trying to find out what Milly wanted for getting married in and she said she was thinking of a white dress that would be trimmed with lace and would wash. You see, I didn't tell her I was going to get you to do this shopping, because I want to give her a surprise.

"I think it would be a good idea if you'd get some of them white shoes and stockings like you wear in the Summer. They all look very practical, but they'd look real nice with the white dress and would have weddings every day on this old farm. Of course, I'll leave the cloak and bonnet to you to get, and any color you think right.

"I hope this won't be too much of a chore for you. I know you're real good natured and it seems to me that it would be easier for you to go into the stores and buy things than it is for me to write to all about them. I ain't no hand to write letters, and I'd do most anything for Milly. They're talking about rumpiking the road in the big meadow. The town-ship would put up much, but we've got to put up enough money to do a good job. Sarah Gallman was groaning so for me to sign my amount and I got you down for $5. I know you're willing to give something for the road.

"If you see any little fancy breastpin or locket that you think Milly would like you might get one to kind remember me by. If you have any money left you can buy two pairs of lace curtains and a fancy tidy to throw over the bureau. Now that I've got my heart on fixing up the old house some, I guess I'll have to get a new bureau, for it is pretty shabby. I don't want to refuse Milly anything just now."

"Bless his old heart!" said Miss Belinda, as she laid down the letter. "I'll have to be a gentle manly to stretch that $40 half as far as he expects it to go." Then she said her brother Ben, who was listening to the reading of the letter, "You know he said you might add to his present the present one him for the straw he put on your roses."

"I'll do it, Belinda," said Ben, "and I'll make it a present from both of us."

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

Coppers Advance in Local Market; N. Y. Starts Strong

W. H. ROSS

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, April 8.—Midday—Stocks were in demand today and both Boston and New York markets opened strong. There was considerable trading on the local exchange. Trinity was in favor among coppers, going 1/4 higher during the morning. Calumet & Hecla gained 5 points. Among other issues to advance were Calumet & Arizona, Old Colony, Mohawk, Utah Copper, Utah Consolidated and Butte & Superior, which gained a point. North Butte and Shannon each sold fractionally lower.

In the New York market American Can made a new high record, selling at 28¾, a gain of 1¾. The first sale of Can preferred was at 111, which was Saturday's highest quotation. Union Pacific was sold there in big blocks and the bulk of the buying is described as "of the manipulative kind."

The Boston News Bureau says: "The estimated copper contents of the mineral produced by the Calumet & Hecla properties for March aggregated 11,812,643 pounds, compared with 10,503,041 pounds in March, 1911, 10,796,956 for January and 12,030,304 pounds for March, 1911."

New York Market Opens Strong.

The New York market had a strong start, particularly in respect to the railroads which carry hard coal. Most of the leading stocks advanced. After the first fifteen minutes profit taking caused some reaction.

At the opening Steel common was in good demand and sold at ¾ to initial sales. N. Y. C. & H. R. R. 140 140 140

Erie common was up ¾, while the preferred was off ¼. Baltimore & Ohio advanced ⅝, while Reading's upturn was ⅝. Lehigh Valley opened ¾ above Saturday's close, but later lost part of this gain. Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but yielded ⅝ upon profit taking sales within a brief time. The copper stocks shared in the strength, Anaconda and Utah was one of the strongest issues in the list. The stock opened ¼ higher, but sold off from the best price reached by this security so far in 1912. Smelting was augmented ⅛ on the day, but Smelting gained ¼. Pennsylvania was ¼ higher and later moved up to additional. The Curb was dull.

Good Signs of the Hour.

This week begins with encouraging signs of financial and business interests. When the London stock market opens tomorrow it ought to reflect the satisfaction felt in England over the recent boom in prices of securities. Such diggers that the latter shall go back to work. Londoners are well disposed toward the present position of affairs at present, believing as the Parisians and the Berliners do, that there is going to be a great industrial and commercial boom in the United States. Now that politics and manufacturing look forward to count on getting the food they need there at a lower price than ever before. Now that British trade and manufacturing look forward to a big boom, the London stock market opens tomorrow it ought to reflect the satisfaction felt in England over the recent boom in prices of securities

PATHFINDER NOW IN NEW MEXICO

Having successfully negotiated California and Arizona, the Los Angeles Examiner pathfinding car, blazing a transcontinental trail between Los Angeles and New York, for the Ocean to Ocean Highway Association, early today entered New Mexico. Present indications point to a successful trip through this, the most dangerous section of the journey.

Harvey Herrick, the intrepid young novelist who is piloting the car, and Chester Lawrence, the Los Angeles representative, in the transcontinental expedition, just before crossing the line into New Mexico, announced themselves elated with their progress and declared that, barring accidents, they would finish in New York on schedule time.

The car, a Case "40," manufactured by the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company of Racine, Wis., has behaved splendidly, and with the exception of one or two minor mishaps, the pathfinder has gone as when it pulled out of Los Angeles last Wednesday.

The trip through California and Arizona, completed on schedule time, was filled with many adventures.

Herrick and Lawrence reported themselves in the best of condition, notwithstanding that the former spent the Sunday at the wheel on some occasions for twenty hours at a stretch. The trail they blazed has been carefully mapped out, and will without a doubt be accepted by the Ocean to Ocean Highway Association as the best transcontinental route of the future for automobiles.

The soil of the various States through which the pathfinding auto will pass will be carefully analyzed by the Los Angeles Examiner representative, who will later confer with the engineers of the Highway Association along the route in connection with the proposed construction of material to be used on the sectional roads which will be made up into the national highway.

The daily progress of the pathfinding car is being watched by thousands of motorists and manufacturers from one end of the country to the other.

Having entered New Mexico, the little car of world-blazing fame will be seen in every city and village.

Some of the cities are: Antonio, Velin, Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Las Vegas, Raton, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Denver, Greeley, Longmont, Grove, Dodge City, Hutchinson, Emporia, Kansas City, Missouri; Kansas City, Kan., St. Louis, Illinois—Springfield, Chicago, Indiana—Terre Haute, Indianapolis, Ohio—Columbus, West Virginia—Wheeling, Maryland—Cumberland, Hagerstown, Baltimore, District of Columbia—Washington, Pennsylvania—Philadelphia, New Jersey—Camden, Trenton, Jersey City, New York City.

BOSTON AMERICAN

Oh, Yes! The Railroad Committee Is in Favor of the Coming of the Grand Trunk

But It Is in Favor of the New Road "Provided That," and "If," and "Whereas"—They Are Up to Something, at the State House, as Usual, and It Behooves Every Citizen of the Commonwealth to Be on Guard

In the April number of Hearst's Magazine—"The World Today"—is a decidedly illuminative cartoon, which might well have been entitled "Distorting the Issue."

We are forcibly reminded of this striking cartoon (the work of Mr. Frederic Opper) by the report which has come down from the State House that the people of Massachusetts have "won a great victory" in the Grand Trunk matter. The chairman of the Railroad Committee, we learn, has named a SUB-COMMITTEE OF FIVE to draft a GENERAL BILL DEALING WITH THE RAILROAD SITUATION.

The Boston AMERICAN feels justified in warning the Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and city and town governments throughout the State—as well as such members of the Railroad Committee as may really be public spirited—that the appointment of this sub-committee, and the corridor gossip that has followed it at the State House, means that the State-wide desire to bring another railroad to Massachusetts is MORE SERIOUSLY THREATENED AT THIS TIME THAN IT HAS BEEN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE RAILROAD AGITATION WAS BEGUN one year ago.

The sub-committee, which has been requested to draw a GENERAL railroad bill—NOT a Grand Trunk bill—is made up of Senator John H. Schoonmaker of Ware, Representative George H. Ellis of Newton, Senator James F. Powers of South Boston, Representative Roger Wolcott of Milton and Representative William A. L. Bazeley, who is credited to the town of Uxbridge, but who lives in the Eleventh Ward of Boston.

Judging from their attitude, as evidenced by the questioning of witnesses and in some cases by frank declarations, FOUR AT LEAST OF THESE FIVE STATESMEN HAVE BEEN AGAINST THE COMING OF THE GRAND TRUNK TO BOSTON FROM THE VERY BEGINNING OF THE MOVEMENT. What kind of a bill may be expected from them?

We learn from such reports as have been sent out that this sub-committee is to draft NOT A GRAND TRUNK BILL, BUT A GENERAL BILL.

What does that mean?

The report from the State House explains that the committee was UNANIMOUSLY IN FAVOR OF REPORTING A BILL ON THE PETITION OF THE SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND (THE GRAND TRUNK), BUT IT FAVORED SUCH BROADENING OF THE RAILROAD LAWS AS WILL GIVE ALL THE RAILROADS IN MASSACHUSETTS AN EASIER METHOD OF EXTENDING THEIR SYSTEMS.

How can such a bill be based upon the specific petition of the Grand Trunk Railway to be permitted to build from Nashua into Boston, from Douglas to Worcester and from Blackstone to Boston?

Supposing that the anti-Grand Trunk Railroad Committee finally decides to report such a bill, WHAT IS TO PREVENT THE RAISING OF A POINT OF ORDER AGAINST IT by some other anti-Grand Trunk man?

And the POINT OF ORDER?

Simply that the bill thus introduced by the Railroad Committee—a general bill, applying to all railroads—is BROADER THAN THE SCOPE OF THE ORIGINAL PETITION for legislation.

There is ONLY ONE OTHER RAILROAD in the Massachusetts situation. That is the Mellen railroad. Does the Mellen road need further legislation? WHY HASN'T IT ASKED FOR IT? Has Mr. Mellen ever been bashful in the Massachusetts State House? Hasn't he had everything he wanted there? If he hasn't had all he wanted, HASN'T HE GONE OUT AND TAKEN IT, REGARDLESS?

And IN TEN YEARS, according to the report of the Railroad Commission, THE EXISTING RAILROAD HAS BUILT 11 MILES OF NEW LINE in this Commonwealth.

WHAT IS the game of the Railroad Committee with reference to the Grand Trunk petition and the wishes of the shippers of Massachusetts?

The answer will appear shortly.

The Railroad Committee has asked for permission to travel. It is announced that Schoonmaker wants to take them over the lines of the CENTRAL VERMONT Railway. It is not announced, but it is whispered about the State House, that they MEAN TO GO TO MONTREAL, and, perhaps as individuals, to VISIT THE MINISTER OF LABOR AT OTTAWA.

About $2,185,100 of the Central Vermont Railway's $3,000,000 of capital stock is owned by the Grand Trunk. The Railroad Committee will not be seeing the Grand Trunk Railway when they inspect the lines of the Central Vermont. The Central Vermont operates only 836 miles of railway. The Grand Trunk Railway is a system of 4,757 miles, reaching from Portland, Maine, around to Detroit and Chicago. The Grand Trunk-Pacific will cross the continent, 3,600 miles, from Moncton, New Brunswick, to Prince Rupert, in British Columbia.

THE CENTRAL VERMONT WAS AN OLD RAILROAD WHEN THE GRAND TRUNK TOOK IT OVER. THE SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND, FROM WHITE RIVER JUNCTION INTO BOSTON, WILL BE A NEW LINE, ERECTED UNDER MODERN CONSTRUCTION.

WHAT IS the game of the Railroad Committee?

The Republican party is still the dominant party in the State Legislature. Fearful of offending the Morganized Railroad Trust of New England, is the Republican-Special Interest machine going to SEND THE GRAND TRUNK MATTER OVER INTO AN OFF-YEAR? Don't they dare meet the issue in a Presidential year? Do they vainly suppose the voters of Massachusetts can be gulled as easily in 1912 as they used to be gulled in 1882? Won't the politicians of Big Business, or the big business men of Politics, EVER learn?

The "boys," of course, would like to see the Grand Trunk question to involved that a RECESS COMMITTEE could be appointed.

A Recess Committee would carry the Grand Trunk question over the Presidential contest. A Recess Committee would report to the NEXT Legislature. Its fifteen members would be paid at least $1,000 apiece out of the State Treasury, in addition to the regular salary of legislators. There would also be a job for a clerk. The clerk would undoubtedly be a newspaper reporter. Until the Recess Bill was through and signed by the Governor, half the State House reporters would be anxious and confident candidates for the clerkship.

IS THIS THE GAME?

We don't know, but we do know that the New Haven people at the State House long since began t DISTORT THE ISSUE. "The Grand Trunk isn't th Grand Trunk." "The Grand Trunk doesn't mean business." "The Grand Trunk is unfair to labor." "The Grand Trunk is too firmly tied up to Canada."

In the Opper cartoon to which reference has been made Uncle Sam is shown with his right sleeve rolled up and a stout club in his hand. The club is inscribed: "Government Investigation of Trusts." Behind the old gentleman, who appears to be vexed, is a poster: "The Trusts Must Be Investigated and Regulated, by order of The People."

In front of angry Uncle Samuel are seven or eight fat gentlemen, each typical of a trust. All are raising "issues."

Says Sugar: "Before investigating the Sugar Trust the Government should take up the vital question of whether the president of the Trust is a blond or a brunette."

Says Oil: "How can you investigate Standard Oil rebates until you know whether the word rebate comes from the Latin or the Chinese language?"

And Tobacco says: "Investigate the Tobacco Trust by all means, but first let us settle once for all whether tobacco was discovered by the Iroquois chief, Howling Buffalo, or by the Onondaga medicine man, Frozen Toe."

There has been ONLY ONE railroad issue before the railroad Committee at the State House:

Does Massachusetts want the Grand Trunk?

Everybody says "Yes!"

Does the Grand Trunk want to come?

The Grand Trunk petition is in!

Try as they may, IT IS GOING TO BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR SENATOR SCHOONMAKER AND HIS ASSOCIATES TO DISTORT THIS SITUATION. From Massachusetts Bay to Albany the people of this Commonwealth are informed of the facts and are on the watch. Newspaper headlines that the Railroad Committee "votes for the Grand Trunk," "is unanimous" and will "draft a GENERAL law for ALL railroads" will mislead nobody.

There remain probably eight or nine weeks of the present legislative session, time enough to give the Grand Trunk Railway such a bill as will enable it to come in WITHOUT GIVING THE GRAND TRUNK MORE THAN IT OUGHT TO HAVE. Let there be no time-killing. The hearings have been closed for a week. THE PUBLIC HAS SPOKEN AS ONE MAN. There will be no good excuse for jamming the Grand Trunk question into the final week of the session and sending it to a Recess Committee at $1,000 a head.

In the meantime, to the Chambers of Commerce, to the Boards of Trade, to city and town councils, to shippers big and shippers little, to the people of Massachusetts, generally:

ON GUARD!

It's a Mighty Good Plan to Remember That the Other Fellow Has Troubles

By Frances L. Garside

THE blessing of a good memory is never over-estimated. The one having it travels a path to knowledge that is easy. It is a short cut and has no obstruction, and he has reached his destination long before the man with the poor memory has started.

A good memory is so essential that the cultivation of the brain along these lines is made an important part of school education.

All of which instruction is vital, but of no account in perfecting his character if he remembers all things and forgets two or three.

And important among the two or three is this: That the other fellow has his troubles.

He remembered to give an order to the other fellow promptly on time. The other fellow forgot to fill it. The other fellow has his troubles. He didn't forget because he wanted to forget. He didn't forget thinking it was best to forget.

He forgot because he was busy, bothered, annoyed, overworked. He forgot because he has his troubles, and they prevent him from doing his best.

A woman calls up her grocer. When her goods are delivered there is a package short. She remembers that she ordered it, but forgets when it is not delivered that the grocer also has his troubles. She adds to them by telling him in no uncertain tones what she thinks.

You remember; the other fellow forgets. Result, your work is lost and you are annoyed. Justly so, since every accomplishment means so much time, and he has caused your time to be lost.

But you lose more time, more effort, more energy, more power, by also forgetting. You forget that a little patience, a little forbearance, a little encouragement, will help him to remember.

You have your troubles, but it is more important that you remember that the other man also has his troubles than that you memorize your own.

The great benefit of helping the other fellow lies in this result: That the man who does it is helping himself. In no way can he help himself more.

This is not a new doctrine. It is the foundation of every old and new creed. A man need not give out of his purse to practice it. He gives out of his patience and forbearance, a form of giving that increases his store.

The best memory is one that gives pleased attention to what the other man has remembered to do, instead of displeased heed to what he has forgotten.

The best memory is never built on a storehouse of the other fellow's mistakes.

The other fellow has his troubles, and it is up to you to remember to help him forget them. You also have yours. He will do his best to make them less if you give him half a chance.

FATHER

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

HE had never made a fortune or a noise
In the world where men are seeking after fame;
But he had a healthy brood of girls and boys
Who loved the very ground on which he trod.
They thought him just a little short of God—
Oh, you should have heard the way they said his name—
"Father."

There seemed to be a tender little prayer
In their voices, even when they called him "Dad."
Though the man was never heard of anywhere,
As a hero, yet you somehow understood
He was doing well his part, and "making good";
And you knew it by the way his children had
Of saying "Father."

He gave them neither eminence nor wealth;
But he gave them blood untainted with a vice,
And the opulence of undiluted health;
He was honest, and unpurchasable and kind;
He was clean in heart, and body, and in mind;
So he made them heirs to riches beyond price—
This Father.

He never preached or scolded, and the rod—
Well, he used it as a turning pole in play;
But he showed the tender sympathy of God
To his children in their troubles and their joys.
He was always chum and comrade with his boys,
And his daughters—oh, you ought to hear them say:
"Father."

Now, of all this world's achievements, 'tis the least
To perpetuate the species; it is done
By the insect, and the serpent, and the beast;
But the man who keeps his habits and his thought
Worth bestowing on his offspring, love begot—
Then the highest earthly glory he has won
When he hears a loving daughter, or a son,
Say "Father."

Passing of Billions

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

IF you were asked the distance from San Francisco to London, you would not say so many inches, but would give it in miles. If asked the distance from the earth to the sun, the answer would be in millions of miles. If asked the distance to the nearest star, the answer would not be in millions or billions, but trillions of miles. Even this reply would be too long. Twenty-five million million miles (twenty-five trillion) are too many words, so it is shortened to light-years. The yardstick for space is not billions or trillions, but one light-year.

This is the distance traversed in one sidereal year, 31,558,149 seconds, by light moving with its set and fixed specific speed of 186,326 miles per second. Distances traversed by space-energy, given by time as in minutes, hours or days, would soon run into cumbersome trillions, so that the time interval used in physics, mathematics, electricity, etc., is always one second.

Say "one second." Then, while you are speaking, radiant energy has traversed a distance nearly equal to a line long enough to reach around the equator of the earth eight times.

Twenty-five thousand billions, the distance of the nearest known star, is condensed in "3.26 light-years. This is the passing of miles, for the mile in space is about equal to the one-millionth part of the thickness of a spider's thread in comparison with the length of the room you are in.

Draw a scale with the distance between the earth and sun equal to three inches; then the distance of the nearest star would be thirteen miles. Space traversed by miles per minute would be almost without meaning, for it go out to the nearest star-sun, at one mile per minute would require 47,528,906 years, not days.
